SUES SON-IN-LAW

Case of Rabbi Wolfson vs. Louis Price on Trial Today

Testimony Deals With Jewish Marriage Customs — Case of McGlinchey vs. Brookside Mills Called and Continued by Agreement

A rather interesting as well as unusual case was opened in the civil session of the superior court before Judge Marcus Morton, this morning in which Elias Wolfson, rabbi of the Jewish synagogue, brings suit against his son-in-law, Louis Price, who conducts a jewelry store in Merrimack street. The ad damnum named is $1000.

According to the plaintiff's declaration, the defendant made a promissory note for $500 payable to the plaintiff on Nov. 3, 1905, and that on Dec. 23d of the same year, Mr. Price paid $500 on the note. The second count alleges that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of $223.03 for various articles of household furniture, board, groceries, cash, etc. Among the items in the bill annexed to the count are the following: Household furniture, $105.60; one range, $25; board of defendant and wife and child for seven weeks at $9 per week, $63. The other items are for smaller amounts which range from three cents to $2.50.

The defendant's answer to the plaintiff's allegations is a general denial of each and every allegation and item, and that if he ever owed the plaintiff as alleged he has fully paid him.

Messrs. Nathan Pratt and J. H. Guillette appeared for Mr. Wolfson and Mr. Pratt in explaining the case to the jury, stated that the matter had been heard before the late Charles H. Conant, who sat as an auditor, and then read Mr. Conant's findings to the jury. Mr. Conant found that on the $500 note, Mr. Price owed Mr. Wolfson $378.77, $105.60 for the furniture, $21.93 for groceries, provisions, cash, etc., making a total of $516.30.

Mr. M. W. Cohen in making his opening to the jury said, that Price married Wolfson's daughter, but as it is customary among some of the Hebrews, the marriage arrangements were made through a third party. Mr. Cohen said usually the father of the bride-elect gives his child a dowry, and he contended that the furniture mentioned in one of the counts was the dowry given at the time of the marriage.

Mr. Cohen was getting rather deep into the customs of the Hebrews when Lawyer Pratt appealed to the court that his brother was going beyond the bounds of law and the court agreed with Mr. Pratt, and Mr. Cohen was instructed to argue along lines relevant to the case.

The first witness called was the defendant, Louis Price, who during the course of examination, testified that he is a jeweler with a place of business in Merrimack street, and had been in business in this city for four years. He said that the plaintiff, Wolfson, is his father-in-law and was married to Wolfson's daughter on June 18, 1907.

"How did you happen to marry his daughter?" asked Mr. Cohen.

Mr. Pratt objected to the question but the court ruled that the witness could answer, and Price said the arrangement for marriage was made through a man named Freeman.

"Did you afterwards meet Mr. Wolfson at his house in consequence of what Mr. Freeman said to you?"

"Yes sir," Mr. Wolfson said that he was satisfied and said he was willing to do for his daughter as much as to furnish a house and also to stand the expense of the wedding.

Case Continued By Agreement

The case of Daniel F. McGlinchey vs. Brookside Mills, against the Brookside Mills, was opened late yesterday afternoon. Nathan D. Pratt and Robert J. Crowley appeared for the plaintiff and Messrs. Dunbar, Rogers and Spalding for the defense. The ad damnum named is $50,000.

The plaintiff was employed by the defendant company, and on February 1, 1909, was assisting in the removal of building material as part of the cleaning up process after a fire which destroyed one of the company's buildings. While acting as a signal man in the operation of a derrick, which was hoisting the wreckage, a heavy piece of lumber slipped from the binding chain and struck him on the head. It is claimed that he received permanent injury, and that the chain and hook used were imperfect or improper.

Shortly after the opening of court this morning, counsel in the case held a conference and by agreement the case was continued.

Hundreds of Young Women Out Collecting for the Milk Station

This is "Guild Day" and the young women of the Lowell Guild who distributed subscription envelopes throughout the city last Friday, collected them today, and while the total sum collected is not yet known, the collectors reported progress all along the line. The money was deposited by the collectors at the Lowell Institution for Savings in Shattuck street and the total amount of the collections will be made known later.

The envelopes distributed by the young women of the Guild, contained copies of the following slip which gives an outline of the work carried on by the Guild:

The Lowell Guild asks for your financial support for its work for this year. The object of the Guild is to assist the sick and relieve the suffering, by means of its visiting nurses and milk station, where modified milk is provided for babies.

The visiting nurse goes on call of a physician to any part of the city and makes daily visits as long as necessary. It is expected that each patient shall pay a nominal fee for this service, but where that is impossible, the service is given free. It is hard to estimate the amount of good which these nurses accomplish or what a blessing they have proved to young and old throughout the city.

The work is dependent upon voluntary contributions for its support, and the trustees take this method of reaching a large number of people, hoping not fail us! If you have not already done so, please visit our rooms at 17 Dutton street and judge for yourself. Please place your contribution in the enclosed envelope which will be called for Tuesday, April 11th, by a member of the Guild wearing a badge.

TOM L. JOHNSON DEAD

Noted Ohio Democratic Leader Passed Away

CLEVELAND, O., April 11.—Tom L. Johnson, twice congressman from the twenty-first Ohio district, four times mayor of Cleveland, champion of 3-cent railway fare, and prominent advocate of the single tax theories of the late Henry George, died in his apartment in the White Hall at 8.45 last night, after a long illness. Death was caused by cirrhosis of the liver. He was 57 years old.

Mr. Johnson had been ill more than a year, but his condition was not thought serious until he suffered a relapse on Wednesday, March 22. He had been gaining strength ever since he came home after spending the summer on Nantucket Island. On Saturday night, March 11, he left his apartment and attended a banquet at the Nisi Prius club, an organization of Cleveland lawyers. He remained there until 2 a. m. Sunday, and when he returned home he complained of not feeling well.

The following Wednesday his condition was such that he was obliged to go to bed. From that day to the time of his death his condition was grave, though several times he rallied amazingly. Although he realized he did not have long to live, he was cheerful and optimistic to the end.

Tom Leflin Johnson was one of the most picturesque figures in American politics. He was mayor of Cleveland for four terms, a member of congress before that for two terms, and a presidential possibility before each of the last two democratic national conventions—for about a minute. He was a millionaire, self-made. He suffered a change of heart—and then lost most of his fortune.

In 1903 while Mr. Johnson was mayor of Cleveland he was nominated for governor by the democrats of Ohio, but was unsuccessful at the election.

One of the first things he did after suffering a change of heart and before losing his millions, was to fight for a three-cent fare on the Cleveland street railways. And that is remarkable in that he himself would be the chief loser, for he held large traction interests in the city. At that many of his fellow-citizens declared, "It is impossible to give Cleveland a three-cent fare was a joke, fraud, designed to make the evil management of the street car lines."

It is probable most of the criticism heaped upon him was undeserved. He had a motto, "Do as I say—not as I do," which best illustrated how far he was inclined to fool himself about himself.

Monopolist at 13

Tom Johnson—Tom was his real name, not Thomas—was born in Scott county, Kentucky, on July 18, 1854, of an aristocratic family that had gone to seed financially at least. He was not bred to the people, as is testified by the fact that at the tender age of 13 he had become a monopolist. He handled all the papers in the town of Stanton, W. Va. where he lived, by contract.

Begins Railroad

Street railroad claimed him at the age of 17 at Louisville. He had invented a street car that is still in use. He devised a nickel trolley for holdall cars. The foundations of his fortune had been laid. At 22 he controlled the Indianapolis Street Railroad company—grasped it, he admitted later.

In 1884 he went to Cleveland and obtained control of a small street car line there. In the same year he began the manufacture of steel rails. He branched out in other directions. Well street heard of him, welcomed him as a nice fat lamb, until it learned by experience of the wolf beneath.

As a politician, he was unique. He would illustrate his speech with incidents from his own life, showing how easy it was for the other fellow to pick franchises out of the municipal pocket. While mayor of Cleveland, he broke all the laws that got in his way during the fight he made against the traction consolidation. Some of the papers predicted every other edition that he would yet land inside a jail.

Struggles for Naught

But his "seven years' struggle" for 3-cent fares and municipal socialism all went for naught. He lost his money and his health. He had not been well for two years.

"Tom Tolstol Johnson" and "Cleveland's 3-cent mayor" were two of his nicknames. He was a believer in self advertisement and these pleased him—catchwords they were. In 1902 he set the whole country agog by making a campaign with a huge electric tent, twenty wagons, a troupe of men and a brass band. And he fought Mark Hanna!

One of the great griefs of his life was the unhappy matrimonial experience of his daughter, Elizabeth, who married a wealthy Italian, only to separate from him in less than two months.

HE DIED SMILING

CLEVELAND, April 11.—During his last illness, Tom L. Johnson, who died last night, was requested to write his autobiography in the birthday book of Miss Louise Graham, a friend of the family. Mr. Johnson signed his name to the following quotation:

"His face was a thanksgiving for his past life and a love letter to all mankind."

When Arthur Fuller, the chauffeur for Mr. Johnson, visited the patient, Sunday afternoon, he remarked that his employer was still smiling.

"Yes, Arthur, I believe I am dying but I still have my smile and am going to die smiling," replied the former mayor.

And he died, smiling.

ALL CLEVELAND MOURNS

CLEVELAND, April 11.—All Cleveland today mourns the death of Tom.

L. Johnson. A public memorial is planned and Mayor Baehr announced that he would appoint a commission to arrange for it. The body will be in state probably until Wednesday.

Scores of telegrams expressing condolence and paying tribute to the worth of Mr. Johnson are pouring into the city from prominent men in all parts of the country, including Gov. Judson Harmon, W. J. Bryan, Senator Burton, Francis J. Henry, Joseph W. Folk, Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo, Mayor William J. Gaynor and nearly every congressman from Ohio.

Governor Harmon said: "A more honest man than Mr. Johnson never lived."

Mr. Bryan: "No man in the past generation did more effective work for the people than did Tom L. Johnson."

THE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS

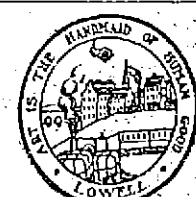

CLEVELAND, O., April 11.—The body of former Mayor Tom L. Johnson, who died last night, will be laid to rest Thursday in the Johnson family lot, Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y., in the very shadow of the monument that marks the grave of Henry George, the great single-taxer, whose disciple Johnson was. This, together with the information that in accordance with the dead man's wishes, there will be no public services here, was announced today following a meeting at the home of City Solicitor Baker.

Cleveland's only opportunity to pay tribute to the former mayor will come Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock when the body will be taken from the Johnson family apartments to the station to be sent to Brooklyn. The route by which the body will be conveyed has been announced, so that the people of the city can view the cortege.

The funeral service will be held at 11:30 o'clock Thursday morning at Greenwood cemetery. Rev. H. R. Cooley, a close friend of Mr. Johnson and head of the city administration's correctional department while Mr. Johnson was mayor, will have charge.

CONCEALED WEAPONS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 11.—As a result of the numerous stabbing and shooting outrages in and around this city recently, a bill increasing the penalty for carrying concealed weapons was introduced in the legislature today by Rep. Harry Cutler of Providence. The act provides that the penalty shall be a fine of $500 or one year imprisonment instead of $200 and six months as at present.

TECH'S ANNIVERSARY

Hundreds of Visiting Alumni at the Exercises

BOSTON, April 11.—Visiting alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who are celebrating the 50th anniversary of the granting of the institute's charter, crowded the halls of the Technology buildings today, visiting the many laboratories and listening to various papers on the achievements in technical science during the past 50 years.

All of the regular exercises of the institute were discontinued at 11 o'clock, and the undergraduates mingled with the returning alumni, whose work has been so conspicuous in the development of modern industry.

Papers dealing with metallurgical processes and with the different metal industries were read by Albert E. Greene of Chicago. Prof. Henry Fay of the Institute, Prof. Sauveur of Harvard and E. A. Fitzgerald of Niagara Falls, N. Y., followed by outlines on improvements in cotton bleaching by W. S. Williams of Boston and of coal combustion recorders by Prof. A. H. Gill of Technology. A review of recent industrial development attracted the interest of electrical and gas engineers. Papers on the subject were read by J. G. Callan of Boston, D. C. Butcher of New York, J. S. Goldman of Boston and Prof. Riley of the Institute.

House Minority Leader Mann Submits List of Republican Appointments on Committees—Effort Made to Show Impartiality Toward Insurgents

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The standing committees of the house of representatives were elected by that body today, after the full committee lists had been presented by Chairman Underwood, of the ways and means committee. The republican members of the respective committees became known for the first time when the full committee assignments were presented to the house.

Prepared by Minority Leader James M. Mann at the direction of the republican caucus, the minority committee selections contained many surprises to the house. The desire to accord impartial treatment to the insurgent republicans is shown in the number of choice committee places given to them by Mr. Mann. Two of the leading insurgents, Representatives Madison of Kansas, and Lenroot of Wisconsin, are given places on the rules committee, when the republicans have but four places.

Representative Good of Iowa is appointed to the appropriations committee, considered a particularly choice berth. Representative Haugen of Iowa is made ranking republican member of the committee on agriculture; Representative Kopp of Wisconsin is placed on the naval committee; Representative North of Nebraska on the judiciary committee, and other insurgents receive important assignments.

Former Speaker Cannon becomes ranking republican member of the appropriations committee. He was chairman of this committee for several years before he became speaker, and the retirement of James A. Tawney, recently chairman of the committee, will probably make the former speaker the republican leader in debates on appropriation matters.

Minority Leader Mann took no committee assignments himself, and will act solely as chairman of the minority conference. His place as ranking member of the interstate and foreign commerce committee goes to Frederick C. Stevens, of Minnesota. The republican list includes the assignment of Victor L. Berger, the Wisconsin socialist, to the committee on District of Columbia affairs, and the assignment of Theron Akin, the New York independent-democrat, the committee on education and on enrolled bills. The republican members of the standing committees of the house follows:

BRUSSELS, Belgium, April 11.—The local papers this morning published a story concerning Ralph Brandreth of New York and Auguste Mathias, the latter being described as the New Yorker's secretary, in which it is affirmed that through the intervention of the minister of justice the two men have been released from prison after serving only 20 days of a two years' sentence.

According to the published account Brandreth and Mathias were arrested on March 5, charged with having swindled the proprietor of a hotel and were subsequently sentenced to imprisonment as "vags." The papers state that an investigation started by the minister of justice convinced him that Brandreth was an American millionaire.

NO COLOR LINE

Cornell Refuses to Bar Two Colored Women

ITHACA, April 11.—"Colored students have resided in Sage college in the past and I see no good reason why that policy should be changed. At Cornell all university doors must remain open to all students, irrespective of race or color, creed or social standing or pecuniary condition."

This is the answer of Cornell university to the petition signed by many co-eds begging the authorities to refuse admission to the dormitories of Sage college to Anna Vassar, of Lynchburg, Va., and Pauline Ray, of Geneva, two young colored women students.

The position of the university is given out in a letter from President Schurman to Mrs. Gertrude Martin, advisor of women, who forwarded to him the petitions in the case.

In his letter to Mrs. Martin the president says he has received two petitions, one signed by 269 co-eds begging that the colored students be denied admission to Sage; the other signed by thirty-six students protesting against any discrimination on the ground of color.

Dr. Schurman further says "the last colored woman student who resided at Sage college writes me that she was politely and consistently treated by the other women students and that these years of residence there were the happiest of her life. Though I am compelled to deny the petition of the 269 women students I have not a particle of doubt that they will make the lives of the two incoming colored students equally happy and memorable."

This statement of the president will, it is believed, end the controversy.

HAVERHILL'S MAYOR

To Marry Haverhill's Assistant City Clerk

New City Charter Results in a Romance—Mayor Divorced After 26 Years of Married Life

HAVERHILL, April 11.—Freed from his first wife, with whom he lived 26 years, by a decree of divorce which became absolute only about a month ago, Mayor Edward H. Moulton of this city yesterday sprang a surprise on his friends by announcing his approaching marriage to Miss Anna Belle Hubbard, who was, until a week ago, the assistant city clerk.

In a way commission form of government, which Haverhill was the first city in Massachusetts to adopt, was responsible for the romance, for under it, Mayor Moulton is required to visit the office of the city clerk several times a day. And inevitably he contracted a great deal of his business with Miss Hubbard, and the inevitable happened.

Divorce Uncontested

The matrimonial difficulties which ended in Mayor Moulton's divorcing his wife were the result of a rather singular misfortune. He and his first wife had lived together very happily for 26 years, when she began to show signs of mental breakdown. These developed until, while one of their two children lay ill with diphtheria, she ran away from home.

Afterward she was discovered in Boston. Mayor Moulton did all in his power to bring her back home. She refused. At the divorce proceedings it was brought out that while in Boston, she lived with a Haverhill spiritualist, who seemed to have unusual power over her. It is said she is now in an insane asylum.

Mr. Olin was formerly a newspaper writer in the press gallery at the state house and has been a member of the G. A. R. since its organization.

NEW TRIAL FOR HYDE

Convicted of Murdering Millionaire Swope

Evidence Attacked Before the Supreme Court of the State and Hyde Had Been Sentenced to Life Imprisonment

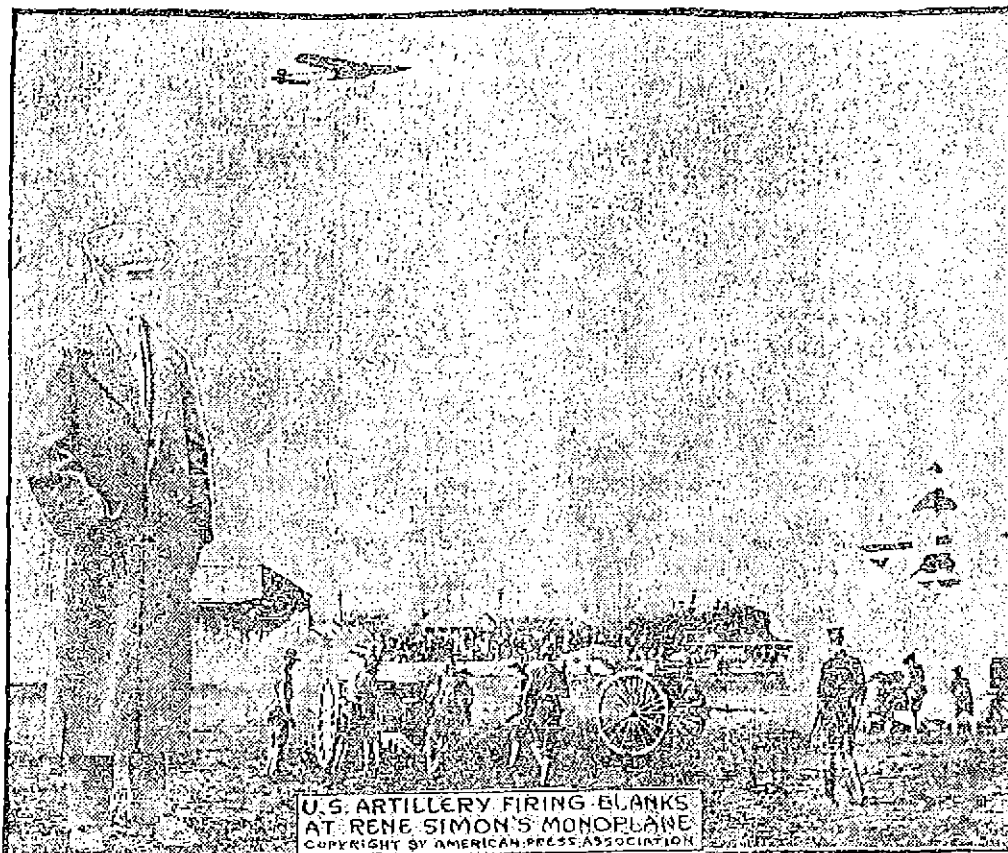

KANSAS CITY, April 11.—Dr. Clark Hyde, convicted after a sensational trial of the murder of Col. Thomas Swope, a millionaire philanthropist, was today granted a new trial by the Missouri supreme court. Mr. Hyde has been in the county jail at Kansas City nearly a year following a sentence to life imprisonment.

The Missouri supreme court's decision today was on an appeal of Hyde's attorney for a new trial. He was sentenced July 5, 1910, to life imprisonment. September 23, 1910, his attorneys asked the highest court in the state for a new hearing, charging error in 255 points.

The chief evidence attacked was that of the Chicago and Michigan toxicologists who examined the viscera of the dead Swope. Dr. Hyde was found guilty of murder May 16, 1910. His inability properly to explain the purchase of capsules of potassium cyanide was chiefly responsible for his conviction. The first of a series of deaths in the Swope family was the death of James Moss Hinton on Oct. 1, 1909. The prosecution charged that Hyde purposely bled the patient beyond the limit of recovery.

Two days later Col. Swope was stricken with convulsions and died. Witnesses testified that a few minutes before the convulsion Dr. Hyde had given Col. Swope a capsule similar to the cyanide capsules it was shown he had bought. The coroner will, leaving $1,000,000 to relatives, was filed and then Miss Margaret Swope, a niece of Col. Swope, became

U.S. ARTILLERY FIRING BLANKS AT RENE SIMON'S MONOPLANE. COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 11.—One of the most interesting stunts in the "war game" was that in which Aviator Rene Simon, his Cleriot monoplane and some men and guns of the Third United States artillery took part. Simon soared and circled above the guns in setting. He kept control, however, and his aeroplane, with the artillery going at full tilt. The aviator chased the guns three miles. Suddenly the artillery halted, and the order to fire was given. Blanks were fired at the aeroplane, causing such a disturbance of the air currents that Simon found it difficult to keep his machine from upsetting. He kept control, however, and shot upward. The aviator, flying immediately above the artillery detach-

EDDY WILL CASE

First Move Made at Concord, N. H., Yesterday

CONCORD, N. H., April 11.—The first definite move in the Eddy will contest before the superior court was made late yesterday afternoon when Dewitt C. Howe, of counsel for the plaintiff, and General Frank Streeter, of counsel for the executor of the will, asked Chief Justice Wallace for a conference for the purpose of fixing a date for argument on the motion filed by the defense for an injunction restraining the plaintiff from proceeding further with the suit. It being suggested by the counsel for the plaintiff that further amendments to their bill were desired to be made, Chief Justice Wallace made an order for the filing of the amendments by April 17 and the replication April 20. Counsel for the defense notified the court that they did not care to make further answer and with the filing of the replication by plaintiff the pleadings will be completed, the issues joined and the case in order for hearing.

By reason of the further contemplated amendments the matter of an injunction was not pressed and the court made no order for a hearing in this branch of the case.

POSTAL CLERK

GAVE HIMSELF UP TO FEDERAL AUTHORITIES

CHICAGO, April 11.—J. J. Daig, head of the wholesale stamp department of the Chicago postoffice, who stands accused of taking $5500 in government funds, walked into the federal building last night and gave himself up. He was locked up in the county jail. A week ago he disappeared just before the finding of the shortage in his department. Daig protested his innocence. "I don't even know why I left town," he said. "I had heard rumors of a shortage in my department and knew that inspectors were checking up on all the accounts. I was worrying a good deal and I simply left town without knowing why or reasoning what the result would be."

The Gypsy at Merrimack Sq. Theatre

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

There is always something doing between 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon and 10.30 o'clock at the Merrimack Square theatre and this week the management presents an excellent bill of vaudeville and daylight moving pictures. This theatre is noted for the excellence of its moving pictures—the kind that do not tire the eye, and the vaudeville which is interspersed with the pictures is of the highest order. As Manager Carroll says "We appreciate the patronage of the Lowell people since the opening of the theatre and therefore there is nothing too good for the theatre goers of that city." The high standard of the weekly bills at the Merrimack Square theatre has resulted in the house being packed after-noon and evening.

Adams and Dahn, clever light wire walkers, who are in a class by themselves perform may hair raising stunts, with a little comedy intermingled. The young lady is exceptionally clever and glides along the wire with apparently as much ease and grace as though she was tripping along the street. The man performs many difficult feats, the audience expecting every minute to see him fall to the stage, but no matter what position he gets into he always manages to regain his equilibrium. His stunt of jumping from the wire into a barrel and jumping out again is one of the cleverest pieces of wire work ever witnessed in this city. Adams and Dahn travel with a circus during the summer time and in the winter appear on the stage.

"A-B-A-DES" is a unique feature. It is known as a pictorial post card atbum and introduces a series of miniature tableaux and child poses from the following subjects:

The Gleaner, Red Riding Hood, Homeless, Rock of Ages, Dutch Milkmaid, How Slowly the Time Goes, The Gypsy, Skylark, Ora Pro Nobis and Good Night.

Cameron and Howard are all to the merry in their comedy sketch and pianologue. The young lady is an expert on the piano and tickles the ivories in a manner that even appeals to those who are not musically inclined. She is also a good vocalist. The male member of the duo has a pleasing voice and sings many new songs and appears to good effect in character impersonations.

The scenic quartet, composed of three men and a woman, sing several selections which please the audience. There is little or no need to comment on the excellence of the pictures for all who have attended this theatre are unanimous in their expression that the pictures are the latest and finest shown in any theatre in this vicinity.

Performances will be given between 1.30 and 10.30 p. m. every day this week, with the exception of Good Friday on which day the theatre will be "dark."

CHARLES J. HAINES
Opera House Stock Company

THE OPERA HOUSE

"The House of a Thousand Candles," presented at the Opera House this week, was an artistic success last night, as it was played by the members of the Thompson-Flynn stock company.

The play was interesting throughout and well presented. It develops most extraordinary situations. Beginning with a will by which an old man leaves his property to his grandson, and said old man appearing on the scene later when all believed him dead, the action of the production introduces the proverbial villain who tries to forge the document and is foiled. Many exciting situations arise in the development of the story. In the end, all terminates happily, as the grandson and the fair one whose hand he has sought, meet at the altar.

The most important part was taken by Forrest Stanley, as the father, who has knowledge of the will, and who antagonizes the villain at all times. Mr. Stanley's acting as usual was very strong and proved once more that there is no part too difficult for him. Benedict MacQuarrie, as the grandson, is another member of the company who deserves recognition, for he played his three very well. Miss Frances Whitelhouse, whose ability is well known and always appreciated by the patrons of this theatre, was again in the leading role, that of Marion Devereaux. Her acting was of the most exquisite kind and it contributed largely to the success of the play.

Frank Christie as Larry Donovan, was the man who furnished all the fun, and Frank was certainly the right man in the right place, for he kept his audience in a roar of laughter from the rise of the curtain to its fall. The "villain," Charles J. Haines, was realistic to the extent of frequent hissing from the gallery.

The cast of characters follows: John Marshall Glenam, Barder McCullum, John Glenam, Jr., his grandson, Benedict MacQuarrie, Arthur Pickering, a lawyer and executor of Glenam estate.

Chas. J. Haines, Larry Donovan, an adventurer, member of Irish band, Frank Christie, Dr. Steadfast, St. Agatha's Chapel, Albert Hanna, The Sheriff, Geo. Callahan, Morgan, caretaker of Pickering lodge, Russell Clark, Bates, butler at Glenam House, Forrest Stanley, Sister Theresa, sister superior at St. Agatha's school for girls.

Florence Tewkesbury, Marion Devereaux, her niece, visiting her, Francis Whitelhouse, Gladys Davis, Armstrong, a scholar at St. Agatha's, Geraldine Russell, "The House of a Thousand Candles" will be repeated every matinee and evening this week.

A feature of the evening's musical program was the selection "Madame Sherry," by Carl Hoeselna by the Opera House orchestra, Louis A. Weller, director. "Madame Sherry" will be one of the musical numbers in the week's program, as the play is soon to be given here.

"THE BATTLE"

Next week's production by the Thompson-Flynn stock company at the Opera House will be a notable one, inasmuch as it will be the first local production of a recent Broadway success, "The Battle." The play was produced by Lathrop & Co., with Wilton Lackaye, as the star and in this play Mr. Lackaye, is said to have won the most pronounced success that has been his since he became a star. The play enjoyed a run of six months at the Savoy theatre, New York city, and was afterwards a pronounced hit on the road. In securing this play for presentation by the stock company the management is following out the announced policy of presenting the best line of plays obtainable. Another big production is in preparation to follow "The Battle."—Adv.

"MADAME SHERRY"

Local playgoers are fortunate not to be compelled to wait a year or longer before they are given a chance to enjoy "Madame Sherry." Usually it requires two seasons for a success of such proportions as this unique French vaudeville to reach here from New York, but in the case of this phenomenal Woods, Frazee and Lederer musical success, the local public will have an opportunity to see it Thursday, April 27th, just as it is now being presented to overflowing audiences at the New Amsterdam theatre, New York.

One of the two New York companies which have been interchanging performances in New York left that city a few days ago and will appear in a few of the principal cities as one of the special treats of the year. "Madame Sherry" is without a doubt the most talked-of musical comedy of a generation, and is sure to prove as great here as it did in Paris, Berlin, London, Chicago and New York.—Adv.

"THE THREE TWINS"

An announcement that will meet with enthusiasm is that Jos. M. Gaites' remarkable musical comedy "Three Twins," headed by Clifton Crawford, with the original New York company, is to appear here April 20th. Not in years has a comedy been produced that is so genuinely funny and bright as this musical farce, and the specialties are in continual collision and nearly every foot bumps pleasure and laughter.

The music needs no introduction, as it is heard everywhere, the costumes are gorgeous, and the electrical novelties that are introduced from time to time are extraordinary.—Adv.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

The Donald Meek stock company with Severin DeBryn, opened in "Clothes," a society drama in four acts by Avery Hopwood at the Hathaway theatre last evening before a fair sized and highly appreciative audience, and gave an excellent performance, despite the fact that it was the first.

The cast was as follows: Richard Durbank, Severin DeBryn, Arnold West, William Marion, John Crane, Simon Cairns, Horace Watling, Donald Meek, Thomas Smith, Jr.

Harrington Reynolds, Jr., Pallance Augusta Pyles, Ada Allen, Mrs. Watling, Lillian Nelderasser, Mrs. Caldwell, Lillian Stewart, Mrs. Maxwell, Pauline Batefield, Olivia Sherwood, Mariette Batefield, Mildred, Isabelle Batefield, Butler, Tom Hall, Gilling, a servant, Jack Keller.

"Clothes," as has been previously announced, deals with the passion of women for the raiment and sets forth to what extremes the dear creatures will sometimes go to acquire luxurious gowns and wearing apparel. The playwright, however, contends that the love of finery is not so much inspired by woman's desire to appear charming before men as to excite the envy of other women. The play abounds in strongly dramatic situations and yet it is replete with good comedy. The play is finely staged and the costumes, well. Listen: The writer in his last this morning found the following from a Lowell lady who is a frequent patron of the theatres of Lowell and Boston and a competent critic. She writes as follows: "The play this week gave me the thought: this love of finery has been—since the very first—one of the best dressed women in any stock company here, of the faintest and best in every particular—and not occasionally, but always. It is a fact commented on by the majority of playgoers. They see and understand—but they do not know that so many of her lovely clothes, (I use the word as it is the catch-word of the week), are the work of a local modiste. Lowell really can contribute that daintiness and style."

Bravo, here goes: Miss Estelle wore two particularly stunning lace evening gowns. One was of Brussels lace over white satin and Dresden gold cloth, CURES SORE AND TIRED FEET.

Ordinary antiseptic vilane powder has many valuable uses, but probably few persons know what wonderful power it has over sore, tired, aching or calloused feet. It draws all the soreness out, checks excessive perspiration, prevents congestion and cold feet, while it removes corns, bunions and callouses. Many physicians know its worth, and the public can be saved much suffering by this knowledge being imparted.

If the reader wishes to try it, obtain of any leading druggist two ounces of vilane powder. To a gallon of steaming water add a teaspoonful of the powder and a tablespoonful of salt, and keep the feet immersed from 10 to 20 minutes every night for several weeks.

fetching and up to the minute gown of that newest of shades, Cornelian, guests, princess, satin with a halcyon in fishnet effect trimmed with gold embroidery and fringe, the back finished with Japanese bow and buckle of same material as gown. These gowns were the artistic work of Miss Bromley Shepard of this city. Miss Lillian Nelderasser was charmingly gowned, with Miss Ada Allen and Miss Lillian Stewart were also lavishly attired. The Misses Babster, to the role of a literature little maid with no opportunity for due raiment, demonstrated the truth of the old adage "Beauty adorned, adorned the most." All the members of the cast were in excellent roles. Mr. DeBryn and Miss Estelle in the leading parts, while Mr. Meek gave an excellent account of himself in an out man's part. The play will be repeated twice daily for the remainder of the week. The musical program by the Hathaway orchestra, Arthur J. Martel, director, contributed no small share to the general enjoyment of the play.

Tickets for Patriots day, April 13, at the Hathaway, will go on sale Wednesday, April 12, at 10 a. m. Tickets ordered for that day will not be held later than nine o'clock p. m. Monday, April 17.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

A banner show was presented at this house yesterday before two large audiences. McLellan and Carson, an act that is seldom seen outside the largest theatres, have an elaborate scenic skating novelty, "Rubes in Toyland." The act embraces fancy skating, eleg and pedestal dancing and many dancing tricks on roller skates. Sherman and Rose are a couple of real singing and talking comedians with a bunch of songs and stories that will please. "The Royal Cook" is a funny comedy sketch played by James Klerman & Co. It tells of the servant problem. Some very droll comedy is worked up in the sketch. The bill includes the latest biograph pictures entitled "The Broken Cross."—Adv.

THEATRE VOYONS

Today the Theatre Voyons shows a most laughable comedy "The Trailing Stamp Mania," a burlesque on the trading stamp craze and the absurd things the enthusiastic wife does in order to fill her books. Her husband suffers in silence, till she buys a coffin for him, just because the undertakers gives double stamps and then there is trouble. "Monsieur" is a charming dramatic story of father love and "By a Woman's Will" is a thrilling Civil war drama, well acted and staged in an exceptional manner. The musical program is excellent and finely rendered.—Adv.

He was in the mountains on the advice of five doctors, who said he had consumption, but found no help in the climate, and started home. Hearing of Dr. King's New Discovery, he began to use it. "I believe it saved my life," he writes, "for it made a new man of me, so that I can now do good work." Donnelly, held a lengthy conference with his officers and aids to the number of 60 in the rooms of the society in Dutton street Sunday. Many of the members spoke encouragingly for the social success of the ball, and from reports received by the members, it is their belief by assurances given them that the grand march this year will be the grandest ever offered for the approbation of the public. After the conference, the members proceeded to the upper hall, where they executed a rehearsal of the beautiful manoeuvres of the serpentine march.

The committee in charge of the ball foresees a large gathering of prominent personages, both local and out of town. On Easter Sunday afternoon, the floor marshal will again meet the members and complete all arrangements.

POORLY PAID TEACHERS

The financial commission of Boston, whose business is to keep down expenses, reports in favor of increasing the pay of 2000 elementary teachers in Boston. It appears that no other class of city employees is so poorly paid considering the value of their services. The commission is here suggesting an act of simple justice to a class whose services are not fully appreciated.

START THE SMOOTH PAVING JOBS

It is time the city council was doing something on the matter of street paving. Usually the summer work on street paving begins on April 15, but it will be over a month later before the work can be begun this year. If a loan be authorized it will require at least a week or two to go through the formalities. Then the abutters will require thirty days' notice, so that it will be nearer to June 1 than May 1 when the work of street paving can be started. This delay in getting started will run the work into the cold weather of the fall. We have had examples of this in the past, and it is bad policy, for the work will cost more and not be done so well. Besides there may be delay in getting the paving blocks. The four-inch blocks are not kept in stock by the quarries and no quarry could furnish them as fast as eight men could lay them. A gang of eight could lay 10,000 paving blocks per day, so that once the work starts it will be necessary to have a good supply of blocks on hand. It is needless to say that a rush order is not so well filled as one on which there is no haste. All this should move the city government to get the smooth paving started as soon as possible.

The board of trade a short time ago got out a good plan for paving the principal business streets by doing a reasonable amount each year until 1915. It was as follows:

CENTRAL STREET—Appleton to Elm.
DUTTON STREET—Merrimack to Broadway.
EAST MERRIMACK STREET—Eastern canal to High.

CHURCH STREET—Central to Concord.

DUTTON STREET—Broadway to Fletcher.
THORNDIKE AND FLETCHER STREETS—Middlesex to Dutton.
MERRIMACK STREET—Tilden to Cabot.

APPLETON STREET—Gorham to Garnet.
FLETCHER STREET—Dutton to Broadway.
BRIDGE STREET—Central bridge to Sixth.
MOODY STREET—Merrimack to Tilden.

GORHAM STREET—Appleton to Davis square.
MARKET STREET—Palmer to Dutton.

Were the streets here indicated paved in the same way as Central and Merrimack streets, Lowell would have reason to be proud of the achievement. The cleaner streets would enhance the value of property abutting and would also be beneficial to the public health in offering less lurking places for disease germs.

TO LESSEN THE NUMBER OF MINE HORRORS

Almost before the victims of the New York holocaust were laid away in the grave, news of a great colliery catastrophe comes from Scranton, Pa., where no less than 73 lives were lost in the Pancoast coal mine. The cause of the disaster was fire, but the cause of the fire is yet unexplained. Almost at the same time another mine horror was reported from Banner, Ala., in which 128 lives were lost. In this case the immediate cause of the disaster was an explosion.

The fact that most of the men were convicts will lead some to blame them for the disaster, but convicts are not as a rule willing to commit suicide just to terminate their punishment.

There were no convicts among the victims at Pancoast. There is no reason to believe that the accident in the Banner mine was different from other mine horrors of which we have had far too many of late.

It seems that little or nothing is done to prevent these mine horrors. If the states do not discharge their full duty in compelling mine owners to provide due protection for their employees the federal government might take steps to protect all workers in the mines throughout the country. Down in the dark recesses of these mines the men have to face dangers that would not be tolerated for a day on the surface. But in the mine the inspectors are not very numerous and the lives of the miners seem to be cheaply rated anyhow, not only by the mine owners but by the government officials. Especially is this so in case of the Alabama convicts. The slavery which these convicts endure when sent into the mines is worse than that which existed in the South before the war. This disaster should result in some action that would put a stop to such cruelty.

Of course there will be an investigation but, like the other investigations of a similar kind, it will result in nothing beyond a finding that a certain number of men in a certain mine lost their lives through a fire or an explosion from some unknown cause. It will not fix responsibility, for that might bring high officials into trouble. There is very little effort to ascertain the long train of evils and sufferings that these mine disasters entail. The families and dependent relatives of the victims are cast upon a heartless world and after a short time they mingle with the mass of workers, receiving no sympathy on account of the sudden loss of husband or father.

But as to the responsibility there is very little effort to trace it, and so far as useful results are concerned it would be almost as well to have no inquiry. If the inquest would search into the causes of accidents and provide against future disasters something would be gained, but there is nothing of this kind.

The following are the usual causes of disasters in mines as well as in factories:

- Faults in construction.
- Long hours of work.
- Too great speed in all lines of work.
- Inadequate inspection.
- Failure to remedy known defects.
- Inadequate warning and signal systems.
- Inadequate instruction and direction of ignorant workers.

To secure reforms along these lines, which apply alike to factory and mine, a special act of the legislature is necessary to compel the management to do its full duty. The safety requirements should be made more definite, more stringent and more capable of enforcement if we are to have any diminution in the number of accidents in mines and factories. This is a matter that requires the careful study and attention of the legislators in nearly every state in the country.

hutions from the public. A vote of thanks was extended to the clerkship of Lowell for their interest and co-operation and also to the Women's Auxiliary for financial help and other assistance, and to the press for very generous treatment.

The President's Report was as follows:

In presenting his annual report to the association, your president feels constrained to express his earnest appreciation of the faithful support of the board of directors during the past year and for the spirit of harmony that has prevailed in all their deliberations. The work of all the committees composed of members of the board has been most efficient and merits the thanks of the association. The duties of the employed officers: General Secretary, Varnell, Boys' Secretary, W. H. G. Wright, Physical Director, Scallo and Office Secretary, Gumb have been faithfully performed, and to their efficient work is due much of the success of the past year that has been one of steady growth under somewhat discouraging conditions. During the year the membership has grown from 651 to 711, 57 more than has ever been reported at an annual meeting. This increase is largely due to the efficient work of the membership committee, under the wise leadership of Director Charles P. Fletcher. There has been a marked increase in the various activities of the association as shown by the partial report of the work accomplished, given by the chairman of the sub-committees.

The association has done a valuable work co-operating for community betterment with other organizations. The Boy Scout movement was started with Mr. H. W. Gibson and Hon. W. B. Wakefield of England, at a meeting

ing in the Y. M. C. A. here. There are a large number of patrols now in this vicinity, and the movement is well launched. In playground supervision, the three of our physical director, Mr. Scallo, was given by the board of directors for two weeks last season, and promised for two weeks this season, to start the work right on the different grounds. In the Men and Religion forward movement, the directors and the members of the association stand ready to help in this movement which is being launched in many big cities. The association is being called upon more and more for extension of its influence and activities outside its building. There are large opportunities for helpful service which should be responded to by those who have at heart the welfare of the community.

An employment and vocational bureau should be carefully organized.

Better equipment should be secured for the Lowell boys' camp.

Careful plans will be made for the opening of the work in the new building.

An enlarged constituency of regular annual contributors toward the current expenses of the association should be secured if the work of the association is to be developed commensurate with the opportunities for service in this large and growing city. Friends of the cause, those who value the development of character by the activities of the association should stand together and co-operate, sinking all personal feelings, prejudices and differences for the good of the boys and young men of the city and vicinity.

Regarding the progress on the new building, we can state that each step is being taken carefully. The foundations are now practically completed, and the laying of the brick walls has been begun. Probably three months ago the foundations were saved by the boys' camp, and it is now hoped that the work of construction will proceed rapidly. It is essential that the foundations should be made strong and the work done well. The interior plans have been examined and approved by many visitors to the association, and when completed, the finished building will give the association an opportunity for much larger service to the community. Then came the educational committee's report.

The educational committee report was as follows: Last season a distinct advance was

GOV. FOSS' SON
TO MARRY A SAN FRANCISCO GIRL
BOSTON, April 11.—Benjamin Scott, Gov. Foss' oldest son, 27 years old, is to be married. While his engagement has not been officially announced here, Mrs. Foss verified the fact last night and said the news had been sent to her by wire from San Francisco, Cal., where her son and his intended bride are at present. The bride to be is Miss Dorothy Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Chapman of San Francisco. She is a leading society girl of the Golden Gate city, and her mother announced the engagement there yesterday. Behind the engagement of the governor's son and the attractive young woman from the west is a story of romance and love mingled with a tour of the country and business. Three years ago young Foss was graduated from Harvard, and directly following commencement day began a tour of the world, accompanied by his brother, Gay Noble Foss. In 1907 Benjamin received a degree of Master of Arts, and went into business with his father at the B. F. Sturtevant Flower Works.

made over the previous year in educational lines. The first sessions of the summer school were opened up with Mr. E. E. Harris, principal, with 35 students. Good work was done and the school will be opened again this coming summer. An electricity class has been taught by Mr. Percy J. Wilson, several supplementary lectures have been given and trips made to electrical plants. Seventeen students in the class. A "Get Together" club has been organized. This is practically an educational club, where each Friday evening an address is given and opportunity allowed for general discussion. The attendance has averaged 22 at 26 meetings during the season. The class in First Aid to the Injured has been taught by Dr. H. H. Sumner. Examinations were held last Friday evening. The report of the boys' work showed great activity in that line. The Ward club at the Eliot church was organized. Boys were sent to three camps, over 30 being registered at the local camp at Nahasset. In short they did fine work in all branches, such as baseball, banquets, Bible study, socials, studies, etc., and the result was a great improvement in the character and personnel of the boys. The social committee has been quite busy also. At present rehearsals are taking place every Tuesday night for the minstrel show to be given on April 3. A baseball social was held on April 23 at which Mr. Murrain of Boston addressed the players. The social work committee has backed up the first aid class and the Get Together club and the sale of tickets for the Bryan lecture, the minstrel show and other entertainments and lectures.

Physical Director's Report
The remarkable part of the physical director's report is the following statistics in regard to the gym:

There were 371 gymnasium classes held, 7307 in regular gymnasium classes, 2169 using floor for special work, 567 using gym privileges, 11,161 baths taken, 80 examinations taken.

The season of 1910-1911 has been one of the most successful seasons in the history of the Lowell Y. M. C. A. It was opened on Monday, Oct. 3, and Miss Hazel Shirley was hired to furnish music for all the gymnasium classes. Her playing has been one of the most pleasing features of the work. Two gymnasium exhibitions were held, one in January and one in March. Over a hundred men participated in both and 500 people attended. The first team is considered one of the best basketball teams in the state, with a record of 15 wins and only one game lost, and that the first and only one regular men playing. Classes were organized in Italian policemen and women for their civil service examinations and the association men were successful in obtaining high ranks.

The association is in receipt of a letter from J. W. Gibson, secretary of the boys' camp, congratulating the Lowell boys on their fine work in raising $100 more than Boston on the Boys' day held recently. The local organization has every reason to be proud of its work.

Religious Work Committee
The religious work committee reported that the Bible lectures given last April was quite successful and that the coming addresses will be delivered on April 12, 19, 26 and May 10th. A number of Bible classes have been formed in the association for boys and for men. The "Social Teaching of Jesus" taught by Rev. James B. Gregg. The address of Hon. Wm. J. Bryan was under the auspices of the religious work committee. On a little over a week's notice, an audience of over 800 was secured to hear the address entitled "The Prince of Peace."

There are many services which should be arranged for the benefit of the boys and young men of the community which the committee hopes to undertake under more favorable conditions in the new building.

General Adelbert Ames
Camp Held Meeting
An enthusiastic meeting of the members of General Adelbert Ames camp, Spanish War Veterans, was held last night and the eighty-three members present acted upon some of the final suggestions relative to the state camp of the veterans to be held here on April 18 and 19.

The meeting was one of the largest ever held in this city and there was great deal of enthusiasm. Four members were reinstated and a similar number of applications for membership were received.

The following committee was appointed to have charge of the Gen. Ames headquarters, which will be established in Livingston hall, Thorndike street, during the convention, which hall was kindly offered by the owner for the occasion: Chairman, John Cryan; secretary, W. Savage; treasurer, Gilbert Hunt; J. Savage; J. McBride; Victor Turner; R. Gibson; E. W. Eastman; J. Phillips and C. L. Farnum.

It was announced that 85 headstones furnished by the federal government for the graves of the veterans of the Spanish war, will arrive in this city within a short time, and will be placed in the local cemeteries.

The camp will purchase tickets for the U. A. R. banquet on the evening of April 19, as a compliment to the local posts.

HOW TO USE CORN MEAL FOR DRY SHAMPOOING

(Mrs. Rohrer in Style and Fashion.)

"Nearly every woman knows that there is nothing better for cleaning the hair than corn meal. Simply sprinkle it over the shampoo you wish to clean, brush it out thoroughly, and the dirt is accomplished. Every tiny particle of dirt and dust adheres to the corn meal and comes away with it, leaving the hair rich and glossy.

"On the same principle corn meal cleans the scalp and hair. Put a half pound of corn meal in a fruit jar and mix with it four ounces of amoniac. This will give you a shampoo powder that not only removes dirt, oil and dandruff from the head, but also roots for it is an excellent hair grower.

"This mixture has a delicate perfume and leaves the hair beautifully soft and fluffy. Of course, the corn meal amoniac should be thoroughly mixed.

NEW BUTTER STORE OPENS

The new store of the National Butter company, situated at 223 Central street will open its door to the public of Lowell and vicinity tomorrow morning, and from present indications a large crowd will be on hand to give the concern a good send-off on its new venture. The firm is a very large and influential company, having stores in all the large cities of New England and sells goods at low prices. They support their own teigs and coffee and sell direct to the people at this means saving many profits and sharing these profits with their customers. The butter is fresh from creamery and delicious in flavor while the eggs are direct from large henneries.

One of the strongest points in favor of this company is the fact that their products are pure in all respects, their butter especially being the best and freshest that can be procured and not renovated, or adulterated butter, as is allowed in the store, or sold under any circumstances whatever. With the low prices that prevail in the store for best quality goods, it can safely be said that the new venture of the National Butter company in Lowell will be a success.

The new store has been fitted up in a style that characterizes this company in all its business undertakings, which makes it one of the best of its kind.

AFTER THE GRIP

If You Do Not Recover Your Usual Health Try This Treatment.

For three years after an attack of the grip Mrs. C. B. Pierce, of South Britain, Conn., was in poor health and found no relief until she built up her blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:

"I attribute my sickness directly to an attack of the grip. I had fainting spells, which came on without warning. I would faint away while sitting in a chair or lying in bed. After recovering from them I would be dreading sick for a week or so. I became so much worse that I began to have two or three fainting spells a day. These spells so weakened me that I had scarcely enough strength to get around. My limbs would become so stiff and sore at night. My sleep was broken for I was extremely nervous and apprehensive of some impending danger. I had severe headaches most of the time and a darting pain over my left eye which affected the whole side of my head. I was troubled with neuralgic pains around my heart and was frequently confined to my bed.

"During two years of my sickness I was treated at different times by three doctors. Their treatment did not afford me relief so I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A few boxes of the pills gave me much benefit. My headaches became less severe and I began to feel better in every way. I gave the pills a good trial and was completely cured. I am in good health now and praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for they undoubtedly saved me from years of suffering."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have also cured anemia, chlorosis, general debility, rheumatism and after-effects of fevers and should be given a trial wherever a tonic for the blood and nerve is needed.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are always the same and are sold out in packages bearing the well-known trade-mark and are guaranteed by the manufacturer to contain no opiate, narcotic or anything that could injure the most delicate system.

MACARTNEY'S APPAREL SHOP

To be Observed on Wednesday Evening

Wednesday evening Jews all over the world will celebrate the feast of Passover, commonly called in this country the Jewish Easter.

The observance of Passover entails many obligations upon the pious Jew. Attendance at the synagogue service and the prayers said in the family circle are not the only acts of devotion required. The pious Jew is expected to follow many biblical and rabbinical commands even in his preparation for the festival. Many of the most interesting of these ceremonies are observed by the members of the household only in the privacy of their homes.

On the evening preceding the eve of Passover an interesting ceremony is observed by the very pious, which is highly characteristic of the conscientious endeavor of the strict Hebrew to observe literally the commandment that there shall not be any bread of "leaven" in the house. Everything leavened must disappear to make way for the unleavened.

The Seder service, however, is more commonly observed. This service is observed at the homes of the pious both the first and second nights of the Passover. It is full of pathetic and historical reminiscences.

The head of the household tells the history of the flight from Egypt, and with each portion of the narrative recited object lessons are exhibited. A mixture of fruit, herbs and almonds made into a paste of the consistency of mortar is eaten in the commemoration of the severity of the life in Egypt.

The reason for the eating of the Matzo during the entire observance of the Passover festival, the Matzo being unleavened and nothing leavened is used, is explained to be in commemoration of the hasty departure from Egypt, when there was not sufficient time given for the dough to leaven.

The service of the "Hagadah" occupies a full evening, but it is not alone a religious and serious ceremony. Between the first and second parts a beautiful repast is partaken of, and there are few Jews who have not arranged a feast for this festival. No Jew is ever refused admittance to the household of another co-religionist if unable to provide the festival meal for himself.

AT DAY NURSERY

Work of Association Outlined in Annual Report

At the annual meeting of the Lowell Day Nursery association, which was held last Saturday, the officers of the association submitted to the members the following report of the work of the Day Nurseries for the year ending April first:

"The year just past has been a comparatively uneventful one. The total attendance, while slightly smaller than that reported for April 1, 1910, is larger than in 1909, 1908 and 1907. The health of the children has been uniformly good and the nurseries, thanks in large measure to the character and intelligence of our two matrons, was never in better condition than at present.

The personnel of the board of officers as at present constituted is as follows: President, Dr. Moses G. Parker, treasurer, J. Gilbert Hill, Secy., clerk, John Jacob Rogers. Directors, whose terms expire today: Mrs. S. P. Brown, Mrs. J. L. Chaffetz, Miss N. P. H. Robbins, Mrs. Mary A. Plunkett and Mr. Paul Butler. Directors, whose terms expire April 1912: Mrs. Charles M. Williams, Miss Sarah Denney, Col. A. M. Chadwick, Mr. Daniel B. Carroll and Mrs. Arthur D. Prince. Directors, whose terms expire April 1913: Mrs. Julian Talbot, Mrs. Lewis E. MacBrayne, Mrs. Matt. W. Peabody, Mrs. W. P. Lawler and Mrs. Paul Butler.

The total attendance during the past year has been as follows:

At the First Street Nursery.....6034
At the Kirk Street Nursery.....6511
Grand total.....12,545
In 1910 the total was 13,900; in 1909, 12,374; in 1908, 12,559; and in 1907, 12,624. The slight decrease from the figure reached in 1910 is probably mainly, if not wholly, due to the falling away in attendance during the summer months when many of the mills were closed, and the mothers not being at work were consequently able to take care of their children for themselves.

It has seemed wise to omit for a year at least the traditional fair, and to substitute therefor an out-door festival which will probably be held about the first of June.

Your officers wish to remind you, and the public generally, that visitors are cordially desired to visit either or both of the nurseries and will at any time be warmly welcomed and shown the work which is being done for the children.

We earnestly solicit gifts, not only of money, but of clothing, fruit, provisions and groceries, and toys of all kinds, or any other articles which you would find useful for your own children.

The foregoing report was accepted by the association, and the various members of the board whose terms then expired were unanimously re-elected.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

OF NEW YORK

JOHN R. HEGEMAN, President

INSURANCE SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

The New York Insurance Department has had the Company under examination, pursuant to law, for about fifteen months. After this examination the Superintendent of Insurance said:

THOROUGHNESS.—"It is thought that no Company of this character under the supervision of any Insurance Department in the United States has ever been so thoroughly examined by such a Department."

PAYMENT OF CLAIMS.—"The claims received averaged from 600 to 800 each working day; the percentage of rejections is small, being in 1909 less than one-half of one per cent."

CAREFUL INVESTMENTS.—"On an investment of $100,000,000 in real estate mortgages this Company now holds through foreclosure but one piece of realty."

INDUSTRIAL POLICIES AT COST.—"On this basis this Company, from all of its departments, added to its surplus in 1909, after setting aside in that year as a liability its dividends and bonuses for 1910, about $800,000; in other words, the volume of its business being considered, seems to have furnished insurance substantially at cost."

PROGRESSIVE MANAGEMENT.—"The Department Report shows during the last five years:

Reduction in the ratio of expense to premium income... 7.13%
Reduction in the ratio of lapse to issue... 10.36%
Reduction of cancellations in first year of insurance... 8.92%

ORDINARY DEPARTMENT

In 1910 the Company wrote a larger amount of Ordinary business in the United States and Canada than any other company, by TWENTY MILLIONS!

In 1910 the Company placed Ordinary Insurance up to the Limit of the Law and was obliged to hold back hundreds of thousands of dollars of insurance by reason of the New York statute limiting amount in any one year.

MORAL: Get in early this year and avoid the rush at the end. Best plans; cheapest rates; all policies non-participating—that is, the money is not collected on promise of repayment in dividends, but is left in the pockets of the insured by reduction of premium.

INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT

OLD POLICIES.—A bonus has been declared to Industrial policy-holders amounting to nearly

SIX MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

payable in 1911 on Whole Life and Increasing Life and Endowment policies issued prior to 1907, which bonuses give reduction of premiums varying, according to period of persistence, from

EIGHT TO ONE HUNDRED PER CENT.

The Company added not one dollar to surplus at the end of 1910 out of income from Industrial policies.

NEW POLICIES.—The benefits on policies issued since January 1, 1907, are over

TWENTY PER CENT. GREATER

than the benefits promised by policies issued previously.

In the last eighteen years it has declared

WELFARE WORK FOR POLICY-HOLDERS

Extracts from the Report of the Superintendent of Insurance of the State of New York.

"No summary of this examination of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company would be complete which omitted reference to certain agencies for social service which it has inaugurated and is now conducting."

"NURSING SYSTEM.—About two years ago this Company inaugurated a system whereby trained nurses would, upon request, be sent to the homes of sick or bedridden policy-holders in its Industrial Department. . . . While this service has been but recently established, and while, therefore, the examiners are in some doubt as to its ultimate effectiveness either from the standpoint of saving the lives of policy-holders or minimizing unhealthy conditions, no one can make a personal investigation into what has already been done without being profoundly impressed with, not only the economic, but, more, the beneficent value of the work. Numerous cases where lives have been saved are already on record. Many instances showing improvement in home conditions due to the visits of the nurses are known."

LARGEST COMPANY IN THE WORLD

The largest amount of insurance in force of any Company in the world—$2,215,851,388, covering 11,288,054 policies. In 1910 the Company made the largest gain in insurance in force of any Company in the world.

PROTEST ENTERED

By the Republican City Committee

At a meeting of the republican city committee held last night it was voted to make formal protest to the mayor against the retention of three democrats on the board of registrars of voters.

The mayor, however, has not yet received the formal protest. The law requires that the board of registrars shall be evenly balanced, politically at least. The law calls for two republicans and two democrats. The city clerk is a member of the board and the election of Mr. Flynn to that office put three men on the democratic end of the roster. Just for that one of them will have to get off, and as John P. Farley is the short term member he will be the one to go.

WINAN'S STEAM GUN

The Sun Solves Mystery of Its Disappearance

"Ted" Meloy Converted It Into Junk at H. R. Barker's Yard Many, Many Years Ago—Gun Has Quite a History

The mystery surrounding the whereabouts of the noted Winan's steam gun, referred to in Saturday's and yesterday's issues of The Sun, has been solved. It was thought by many veterans of the war and older residents of this city that the alleged death-dealing piece of ordnance could be located. It would be very appropriate to exhibit the gun in Memorial hall during the observance of the 50th anniversary of the march through Baltimore.

The freak invention, however, is now a thing of the past for sometime during the late sixties or early seventies, the gun was consigned to the H. R. Barker Co.'s plant in Middle street and Edward Meloy, assistant engineer of the local fire department, was the man who reduced the gun to scrap iron with his little hammer.

The Winan steam gun was in many ways a forerunner of the modern Gatling gun but was a very crude affair. Iron balls, cast rough, were shoveled into a large hopper, which tapered down to a groove. This groove allowed the balls to slip down into cuplike attachments which were revolved at enormous speed. The cups threw the balls forward. Every part of the machinery was protected by sheet iron or steel and an armor shield was provided for the operator of the weapon. The gun was propelled by steam. Everything depended of course on the careful and accurate adjustment of the various parts.

Ross Winan, of Baltimore, a very rich man, whose sympathy was with the south, was the inventor of the gun and he anticipated that his steam gun would revolutionize warfare, but the gun was never used in a battle. For Gen. Butler captured the cumbersome affair outside of Baltimore, and when the Sixth regiment returned to Lowell, the regiment was allowed to bring the gun with it as a trophy of the war.

Recently when the newspapers throughout the country started publishing reminiscences of the war, the question of the whereabouts of the gun was brought up, and today The Sun is able to be the first to publish the information that the gun after being brought to this city was exhibited on the fair grounds and at several places later was stored in a store house of the Merrimack Mfg. Co. and still later was turned over to the H. R. Barker company where it was broken up.

A Boston paper this morning contained a very vivid account of the gun and its wonderful powers, but when a representative of The Sun interviewed several people who had seen the gun they simply laughed at the story and said that the greater part of it was made out of "whole cloth."

Old Resident Remembers Gun

Mr. Clark M. Langley, one of Lowell's oldest residents and a man who knows a great deal of Lowell's history and affairs in general, in response to The Sun's request for information relative to the whereabouts of the gun, sent in the following self-explanatory letter.

Editor of the Sun:

"You ask for any information in regard to the whereabouts of the 'Winan Gun.' Your illustration in yesterday's paper was very good. I saw the gun many times in the Big Machine shop yard. If I remember correctly it was given (by whom I do not know) to the Middlesex Mechanics association and in various ways was exhibited for some time but I suppose in time it became a white elephant on their hands and it was broken up and sold. The engine, I am quite sure, was bought by H. R. Barker. It was, as has been said, a freak piece of artillery and that caused me to visit it several times. If it had been properly constructed it would have been quite a formidable piece of artillery fifty years ago. It had a hopper into which the balls or bullets were put and they were fed automatically one at a time by a

PUBLIC TO DECIDE

If Races Will be Held in Lowell

The prospects of automobile races being held over the Merrimack Valley race course this fall are good. The active members of the Lowell Automobile club, backed up by the assurance of a big entry list by the National Motor Contest circuit and the fact that there will be no hitch over the closing of the roads, are ready to go ahead and give the people of Lowell, as well as thousands of people interested in automobile racing, one of the best races ever held in the east. If the people of Lowell want a race they can have it, if they do not want one, there will be no race.

The Lowell Automobile club is anxious to learn what the people think about the holding of a race and would like to have citizens express their opinions through the columns of the press. If a race is to be held it is time that the club should start to formulate plans in order to make the affair a success.

In conversation with one of the active members of the Lowell Automobile club and a person who assisted in making the races of 1905 and 1906 the successful that they were, the automobile editor of The Sun learned that the club was ready and willing to devote time and labor in the preparation of plans for a monster race if the people were anxious that one be held this year.

The gentleman in question had the following to say: "We are simply waiting to learn the wishes of the public. If there is a public demand, which there seems to be at the present time, we will hold a race. There will be no difficulty about the securing of a sanction for the A. A. A. has offered Lowell the preference."

"If a race is held in Lowell this fall we will not go to the big expense that we did the year before last. In all probability there will be no grandstand and unless it is compulsory we will not construct a pontoon bridge across the river from the Middlesex village side. The course will be well patrolled and everything possible will be done for the safeguard of the spectators and drivers of the racing cars."

"The event of a race, we will not have to worry about getting all of the big drivers here, for under the provisions of the recently formed National Motor Contest circuit, that body guarantees to furnish the cream of the racing men in all contests run on the circuit, and Lowell would be on the circuit."

"There is a tremendous interest in the race outside of Lowell and we have received numerous inquiries from people throughout New England, who are anxious to know whether there will be a race or not."

"I, for one, do not want to go through a stage of criticism like we did the year before last, after a few of us had given five months time and received nothing in return but unjust criticism."

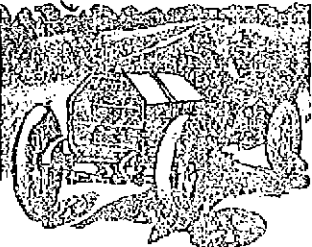

Pres. John O. Heinze of the Lowell Automobile club, who has been in Detroit during the greater part of the winter, is expected home this week and when he arrives, it can be ascertained whether or not there will be held this fall.

National Motor Contest Circuit

The National circuit of automobile racing is an accomplished fact. Recently papers were filed in Albany incorporating the National Motor Contest circuit, the formal designation of what is already popularly known as the "National Circuit," and such men as Howard Marmon, Robert F. Hooper, S. M. Butler and A. B. Partridge are among the incorporators. The various details from which these men are drawn is significant of the intention of the new association. The company has its existence solely for the benefit and advantage of the manufacturers who take part in racing and for the great public which is interested in the continuance of clean and high-class sport.

The incorporation, which was done in order to centralize responsibility, is one of the best of the steps that must be taken before the actual racing season opens. Practically every other de-

VETERAN DRIVER

Lytle Entered in International Race

Gathering in one by one the world's premier motor racing pilots, the 50th anniversary of the Indianapolis automobile memorial race has assumed greater proportions than any other race in the history of automobile contests. There is but one great driver left on American soil who is not nominated to drive a car in this long classic—"Wild Bob" Burman, the successor of Barney Oldfield. Burman will be in the race—his word has been given.

This wonderful condition is made possible by the entry of Herb Lytle, the daddy of them all, dean of American drivers. In an Apperson Jack Rabbit, the entry was made by Lytle himself as owner, and the association of his name with the veteran racing car from Kokomo makes the roster of the great race look unusual to the older fans of the motor racing sport.

Along with the entry of Lytle came the entry of two Pal cars from Chicago. J. F. Gehlman and W. H. Pearce were nominated as wheelmen for these two. They are the 1910 team drivers for the Pal. The former won the classic Coca Cola trophy at Atlantic last November and the latter was the winner of the G. & J. Trophy race at the Indianapolis brick track last July. They had great success with the Pal cars in the past year and are looking forward to the winning of new laurels during 1911.

The driving history of veteran Herb Lytle reads like an interesting account of the greatest events in the annals of motor racing. The story of his career starts way back in 1895, when he participated in the Cosmopolitan race in New York city and later, in 1906, went to Europe in the London to Brighton race. Five of the great Vanderbilt Cup races have been won by him in the running of them. The Apperson is Lytle's old love and his coming back to it is one of the notable features of the season.

In making his entry, Herb said: "I've gone back to the car which I had the greatest success with, and I'm going to use parts of the old car in making this new one. I shall take the stock motor, which is as fast as they are built anywhere, and use parts of the old chassis which made the other Apperson Jack Rabbit famous. I know now that the car will travel better than 100 miles an hour without trouble, and believe that I have taken the best motor I could buy for the race."

While I was in Europe I had the offer of four or five of the best foreign cars, but I think that the American cars can outrun the machines sent from the other side, so I'll take the Apperson this time."

Lytle will have his car ready for running within a few weeks. The motor which he will use is the same as the one which made the fastest lap in the Lowell road race of 1905 and has turned out a mile on the road in 44.25. It has five and one-half inches stroke and five and three-quarters inches bore, with a piston displacement of 571, being rated at fifty-horse power.

The total list of entries for the race now stand at thirty-five, by far the largest number of cars ever entered in any race, and the Speedway management is confident that eight or ten more will be named before the entries close on May 1.

DYRENFORTH CASE

SETTLEMENT MADE AMONG THE HEIRS

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A settlement was effected today among the heirs of the late General Robert Dyrenforth of this city and no attempt now will be made to probate the remarkable will of the one time acting commissioner of patents. In this will, General Dyrenforth directed that his grandson, at the age of 21, should at all times avoid the opposite sex, including his own grandmother, that he should complete a course at Harvard, graduate at West Point and secure a degree from Oxford, all before attaining his majority.

Under the terms of the settlement, made in court today, the grandson receives $3000, which is to be held in trust and used for his education along such lines as his guardians shall direct.

MINERS RETURN

MARTINS FERRY, O., April 11.—Thirty miners employed in several Ohio mines who struck nearly four weeks ago by order of their former national president, T. L. Lewis, returned to work today as a result of the conference at Columbus yesterday between the officers of the National United Mineworkers of America and those of the Ohio sub-district.

LOUIS DISBROW

Relates His Experience at Jacksonville

Louis Disbrow, who drove the Pope-Hermer in world's record time in the 300 miles race at Jacksonville, in describing some of the unpleasant features of driving 300 miles on a street course has the following to say about his experience: "We had to run ten miles and then turn round a barrel. To get round that barrel in anywhere near a quarter of a mile it was necessary to begin slowing down a mile away. Then we coasted around at about 5 to 10 miles an hour. Before we worked through the gears back again to speed it was another mile."

"So actually all the good running we were doing was about eight miles out and eight back. My speedometer registered at the very end 102 miles up to 100 miles an hour on those stretches, although the average for the race was 77.98 miles an hour. So you can see the apparent average isn't nearly as fine as the actual average. Later on when the turn got all out up I simply had to run about a quarter of a mile beyond the barrel. That added to the time."

"The average person doesn't realize what it means to be running a car at 100 miles an hour or more. After about 150 miles I couldn't hold my head up. The muscles of my neck were tired out with striving to meet the wind, which was intensified by the speed at which I was travelling. It was there that my mechanic, Herbie Abraham, came to my rescue. He twisted around, in back of me and supported my head with his two hands."

"From resting his elbow on the tank with the constant vibration the skin was worn off right down to the bone. He was in suffering for about 150 miles, but he never complained. I wouldn't have had a chance to finish the race without him. My car, which was about the National, had to curl up behind the steering wheel and rest his head on his arm in order to make the trip. Burman in the Benz found he couldn't get hold of his change speed levers because he couldn't thrust his hand against the wind to the lever."

"The sun came pelting on so that my three sets of goggles were scraped by it and at the finish they looked as if made of ground glass. And the leather mask was all puffed, the glass worn out, and on one cheek the leather was almost worn through. If that sand had begun to eat my face it would have made short work of the skin."

"The fibres in the sand made the car take a jump occasionally that sent it away out into the air and it made me a little doubtful just what would happen when we landed. It was a great strain on the car and on the crew. That is what automobile racing is nowadays. It is a test of the driver's endurance more than of the car's."

"Tollard's car. That will be easy compared with Jacksonville. I am determined to drive the 300 miles without a relief. At Indianapolis I believe the race will be won in the last 100 miles. If a man drives in that race at a speed greater than the limit of the track he will lose time enough in changing gears to bring his average away down. So I think the best way, which is the safest, is to run inside the track better by not having so much change better. Seventy-five miles an hour average will take that race and that's the way I expect to drive. I think the results at Jacksonville make us look a lot better for Indianapolis."

LICENSE HEARING

Has Been Postponed Until April 18th

At Request of Law and Order League Which Brought Petition for the Hearing — Commissioners on Tour of Inspection

The hearing which was to be given tonight by the board of police to the Law and Order league and the federation of churches, has been postponed until Tuesday April 18, at which time the board will hold a regular meeting at the request of those interested.

The Law and Order league and the Federation of Churches have objected to the granting of two licenses, a first and a fourth to one applicant. They also asked that no liquor license of any description or denomination be granted to anybody in the Greek colony in Market street and that the petition for a license at the corner of Bridge and Paige streets be denied.

The hearing was postponed at the request of the Law and Order league on account of the many church services held this week, Passion week.

The commissioners were on a tour of inspection today.

THE $60,000 PUMP

Parts Have Been Shipped From Milwaukee

The greater portion of Lowell's $60,000 pump is on the way and is expected to arrive within a day or two. The water board has received notice that the water end of the pump and other pieces making four carloads in all were shipped from Milwaukee, April 4 and the steam end will come later.

Billy I. Harris, constructing engineer for the makers of the pump, the Allis-Chalmers company, is on the ground with a gang of men and is anxiously awaiting the arrival of the pump. Mr. Harris and his men came here from Kansas City where they installed a pump having a capacity of 20,000,000 gallons a day. Lowell's new pump will have a capacity of 6,000,000 gallons a day and will be installed in the West Centralville pumping station.

The Allis-Chalmers company has until May 14 to install the pump according to contract and if the company fails to have the pump installed and in running order by that time it will have to pay a fine of $25 a day for as many days as the terms of contract have been overrun.

Popularity of the Medium Priced Car is Evident—Several New Makes of Cars Make Their Appearance in Lowell—Agents Satisfied With Present Business and See Prospects of Better Business in the Future—Operators of the Auto Fire Patrol Are Now Licensed Chauffeurs

All the kind words there are just about come up to describing the way motorists in general and dealers in particular felt about the weather that beamed forth yesterday, following Sunday's snow storm. Weather, he it known, is a powerful element in the motor world. If it rains or snows, is gloomy and cold, folks do not want to go out riding for pleasure. If they have closed cars, completing the winter's service, they are not going to be in any rush to change these for open cars. They do not want to go out for demonstrations of course, and they dismiss the automobile projects from their minds for a little while anyway. But when a morning dawns like yesterday, it makes a big difference. It reminds the enthusiast that the auto season is on and the demonstrators and salesmen are kept busy.

Despite the fact that the weather of a couple of days last week was not of the kind that would entice a person with thoughts of automobiling, the local dealers did a brisk business and foresee many good prospects. In several of the local garages there are a number of new cars which have been sold for future delivery, for the enthusiast who takes pride in keeping his car neat and clean and in good running order, is willing to leave it in the garage until the snow has disappeared and the roads have dried up.

John Rinehardt, Martin C. Rowell, John F. Ambrose and Harold L. Foster, of the protective company, are now licensed chauffeurs, each having received a chauffeur's license from the Massachusetts State Highway commission. According to the law, it is not necessary for the operators of automobiles belonging to the city or police department of a city or town to be licensed, but it was deemed advisable that the men be licensed, therefore they took the written examination at city hall and subsequently, accompanied by a representative of the commission, gave demonstrations of their ability to operate an automobile through the streets.

Harry R. Sanders, driver of Chief Hosmer's automobile, and Charles F. Stackpole and Alfred F. Prescott, who operate the car when Sanders is at his meals or has leave of absence, are also to take an examination in order to qualify as licensed chauffeurs.

Mr. Edward L. Sawyer of the Union National bank has received a permit from the inspector of lands and buildings to erect a garage for his new Hudson car, in the rear of his home at 21 Chester street. The building will cost about $400.

This month's issue of Motor contains an excellent half page of the Lowell Times, as well as the E. R. Thomas Motor Co.

One of the classic automobiles sold in this vicinity this season is the 60 horse power, four door, five passenger Stoddard-Dayton delivered to Elmer E. Cole of Billerica by Frank S. Bean of this city. The body of the car is dark blue with nickel trimmings.

William E. Potter, the real estate dealer, attracts considerable attention as he drives through the streets with his new 40 horse power Stoddard-Dayton.

Frank S. Bean has delivered a 50 horse power Stoddard-Dayton to Mrs. E. B. Pierce of Belmont street. It is a model 11A, four door touring car and is finished in dark blue.

Harold Selfridge of the Lowell Textile Co. has purchased a Reading 10 runabout from Paul E. Chandler, the local agent for that car. The machine is built very low, equipped with a bucket dash, large gasoline and oil tanks in the rear and has a racy appearance.

Every year finds an influx of new makes in this city, and this year among the cars that have not been sold in this city heretofore are the Cole 20, Case, Reading 40 and Cutting. The Cutting is the latest arrival and Paul E. Chandler of Third street has taken the agency. During the past week he has been giving demonstrations in the runabout and touring car which he has on hand. The machines are built along neat lines and the style of the body and finish are in keeping with the power of the engine.

Frank D. Donovan, agent for the Inter-State, had several demonstrations cars from Boston in Lowell last week, and those who were given the opportunity to enjoy a ride in one of the cars claim that it has many of the great features of cars costing twice as much. Mr. Donovan states that he has several good prospects on hand.

George F. White of North Chelmsford delivered a Model 11, Ico delivery wagon to the Adams Hardware Co. in Middlesex street last week. The machine has a capacity of 1500 pounds.

M. S. Feindel of Davis square reports a brisk season. The number of 1911 models of Ford and Overland cars on the streets of the city this year is evidence that he has little reason to complain of poor business.

S. Howard Chase of Eighteenth st. has purchased a Model 11, 25 horse power four-passenger Maxwell through the agency of Mackenzie & Bryant. It is a four passenger car and the body is finished in dark blue with cream colored running gear. In order to properly house his car Mr. Chase had his auto shed enlarged.

Roy F. Lovejoy, agent of the Lexington car, is in New Orleans on a business trip. It is expected that he will remain in the south for two or three weeks.

Saturday, Mackenzie and Bryant delivered a model Q, 22 horse power four passenger, four door Maxwell to Harry M. Sawyer of 16 Cambridge place. The body of the car is finished in light blue and presents a very neat appearance.

George R. Myers has equipped his Model G, Maxwell roadster with a top and windshield in order that he may enjoy his automobile in both cold and stormy as well as pleasant weather.

The snow storm of Sunday prevented many motorists from enjoying the day on the road.

That the members of the gentler sex have mastered the intricacies connected with the operation and care of the automobile is evident by the number of lady drivers seen on the streets of Lowell every day. While many of the young ladies are capable of operating cars and making minor adjustments and repairs there are others who know the engine from "A to Z" and are equal to any emergency that may arise on the road.

The Motor Racing Drivers' Association of America, composed of professional racing pilots, was formed a few days ago in New York. George Robertson, who drove the Simplex to victory in the 1909 race over the Merrimack Valley course, have been chosen racing president. Ralph De Palma, who secured the Fiat is on the membership committee. Charles Basle, the pilot of the Renault is a member of the special committee of out-of-town representatives and Joe Matson, he of Chalmers fame, is on the eligibility and protests committee. Fred Wagner, of the A. A. A. starter, was elected an honorary member.

The smooth running and noiseless electric vehicle is becoming very popular in Lowell, there being about a score of that style of automobile in the city at the present time. One of the first, if not the first, of these enthusiasts in Lowell to use an electric vehicle was Agent William S. Southworth of the Massachusetts mills. Mr. Southworth has had several electric "cars" and uses his latest model daily in going back and forth between his home and the mill.

Dan O'Day, E. D. (expert demonstrator) of the Lowell Automobile corporation, is kept busy these days giving demonstrations in the Oldsmobile and Buicks and teaching new devotees of the game how to operate and take care of their machines.

George R. Dann, of the East Merrimack Street garage, went to Chelmsford yesterday and returned to Lowell this afternoon with a handsome six cylinder four door five passenger Stevens-Duryer, for which he has a prospective purchaser. During the latter part of the week he will receive four more Stevens-Duryers, three five passenger cars and the other a seven passenger touring car.

The Hudson and Chalmers, for which Mr. Dann is also agent, are attracting the attention of prospective owners of automobiles and it is expected that within a few weeks a number of these cars will be seen on the street. The Hudson has proved to be a very popular car and Mr. Dann has sold a number this season.

When the automobile editor of The Sun called at the Merrimack Valley garage in Moody street yesterday afternoon, he found the repairmen busy at work on machines and considerable work on the floor which had not been touched. The management of this garage stated that business has been very good this season and he has no reason to complain. Despite the fact that the repair work has kept the mechanics busy, the management of the garage notes a portion of his time demonstrating the good qualities of the Stoddard Day Six to prospective customers.

William F. Foxe, of the Park hotel, is getting to be an expert operator of an automobile and handles his red Buick like an old time driver.

It is evident that the Oakland, the agency of which is at the Moody Bridge garage, is a very popular car, for many of that make have been sold in Lowell and vicinity this season. Yesterday three Oakland's arrived in Lowell. One was a big touring car, while the other two were runabouts.

Couples who are anxious to be married in style are making bookings with Edmund Mercer for the use of his handsome limousine, for the occasion, and he has a big list of parties who have engaged him for the Easter weddings. Those who desire his service should make their bookings at once, for with him it is "first come, first served." As usual he is making a specialty of local and out of town trips, and those who have gone on a trip in one of his machines are anxious to make others. This equipment consists of three of the newest and best machines in the city. You can have the choice of the big limousine, seven passenger touring car or five passenger touring car.

Mr. Mercer is to add to his equipment within a few weeks and it is understood that the new machine which he has purchased will be one of the classic self-propelled cars in this part of the country. All that "Ed" will say relative to the new machine at the present time is that it will be far ahead of the machines he is using at the present time, and if that is so, the new car will be a wonder.

Mr. John J. Hogan has accepted a position as traveling salesman for the Pitts Auto supply Co. in Hurd street. This firm intends to do a jobbing business, and Mr. Hogan will cover all of the territory north of Lowell. Mr. Hogan reports the following sales of Ajax tires for the week: Helms Electric company, four; Lowell Gas Light company, for Buick trucks, three; Dr. E. H. Peck, three; Samuel Scott, two; Byam Bros., two; The Joyce Co., one; Mr. E. Pelletier, one.

Dr. Frank G. Guiliant has bought a model 26 Buick roadster and within a few weeks he will be seen gliding through the streets in his new machine. The car will be delivered through the Lowell Automobile corporation.

Leonard H. Spaulding, treasurer of the L. H. Spaulding Co., shoe manufacturers of this city, made a speedy run from Woods Hole to this city yesterday morning in his big Packard touring car. This is considered a rather long trip for this time of the year, but Mr. Spaulding found the roads very good.

Arthur J. Cumiskey, the bustling salesman of the Moody Bridge garage, went to Lawrence yesterday and closed a contract for a model 33 Oakland touring car with Timothy J. Dooling, grocer and provision dealer, of 8 Newton street.

Salesman Thomas B. Huxtable and Milo Hale of the Lowell Automobile Corp. report several sales of Buick cars this week, with many good prospects for future deliveries of Oldsmobiles and Buicks. The popularity of the Buick is evident inasmuch as many people who operated other makes of cars last year are setting their 1910 machines and purchasing the latest models of the Buick. A big seven-passenger Oldsmobile with artillery wheels was sold during the week but will not be delivered until the first of the month.

IN POLICE COURT

Short Docket Quickly
Disposed of Today

The police court session was very brief this morning, for in all six cases were brought before Judge Hildley, three of drunkenness, one of non-support, one of larceny, and the other that of a stubborn child.

Larceny
Edgar Cameron, charged with the larceny of clothing and different other articles from Helge Lagergren, entered a plea of not guilty. The testimony revealed the fact that Lagergren was employed by Frank Leadi, and that between the middle of March and April 7, he was away. While the latter was gone, Cameron was hired in to take his place. Lagergren's trunk remained in the stable, and it was claimed that Cameron broke open the trunk and helped himself with its contents. Of the stolen goods a pair of shoes and a stick pin were recovered.

The court found the defendant guilty and referred the sentence (all tomorrow, Cameron being held in the sum of $500.

Neglect of Wife
Armand Lacombe pleaded guilty of failing to provide proper support for his wife and he was placed in the care of the probation officer.

Drunkenness
Thomas Shea, who when charged with being drunk yesterday, entered a plea of not guilty, and whose case was argued all today, was tried and found guilty this morning, and ordered to the state farm. The defendant when arraigned in court had both his eyes blackened and wore several scratches about his face. Police Officers Markham, Lane and Winters and a Mr. Barnes testified that Shea was staggering and fighting drunk when arrested. Henry Dusseldorf admitted being drunk and was given a suspended sentence of 2 months in jail. Philip Dronth also for drunkenness was ordered to the reformatory for a term of 6 months.

ROYAL ARCANUM
ROCHAMBEAU COUNCIL TO HOLD MEETING TOMORROW

The members of Rochambeau council, R. A., will hold an important meeting tomorrow evening in C. M. A. C. hall in Pawtucket street. The occasion will be the initiation of a class of 11. The said initiation will be performed by the degree staff of Lowell council, No. 8, who will work the Kepton ritual.

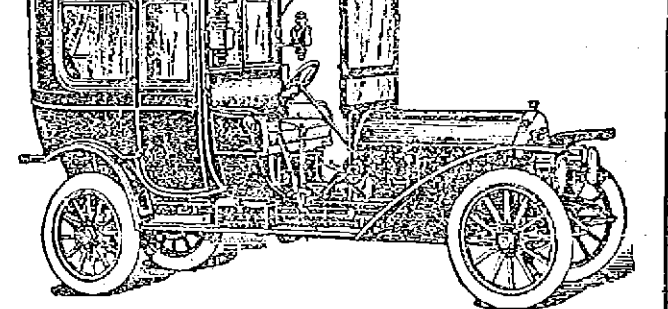

Another important feature of the meeting will be a lecture given by Postmaster Joseph Legare, who will be tendered a reception. Mr. Legare was the first Past Regent of the council, and his brethren will make this meeting an opportunity to congratulate him over his new position. It is expected that the meeting will be largely attended.

ARMY MEN AT SCHOOL IN TEXAS MIX AMUSEMENT WITH INSTRUCTION

By GEORGE WAUGH ARNOLD.

EVERY man in the United States army who is mobilized in Texas never finds an occasion for firing a shot in earnest. The lessons taught in transportation, equipment, feeding and sanitation are bound to be of the greatest value to every man concerned, from the commanding general down to the rawest recruit.

Especially interesting to the man in the ranks are the experiments making to reduce his present marching load of fifty-four pounds. When it is considered that the average citizen would yell "Police!" if he was ordered to carry fifty-four pounds for a city block or two, the interest of the man who has at times to skip across country for twenty miles lugging that weight becomes painfully apparent.

The officers hope, principally by using aluminum instead of tin for eating utensils and by reducing the weight of the tent poles, to secure a total cut of about fifteen pounds, and the men say, like the German comedian, "We hope your hope comes out." Under the pres-pick, thirteen pick mattocks, thirty-nine shovels, three wire cutters and a two foot folding rule. The soldiers take turns in carrying these little extra impediments, and there is great ingenuity exercised to get the "snap" of carrying the rule.

Of course a man capable of performing these weight carrying feats must have something of an appetite, and when he is in the field he has to eat along his haversack ration. This is composed of meat, coffee, hard tack, sugar, pepper and salt. When he starts out for a doubtful length of time he has also an emergency ration. This is a small cake of compressed food having among its ingredients beef, sugar, salt, beans, potatoes and wheat. Placed in the regulation cup and moistened with boiling water, this is said by the officers to be both palatable and filling. The men call it the "iron" ration.

Strictest Sanitary Rules.

The sanitary corps, skilled in the science of keeping dirt and consequent disease out of the camps, is of the greatest importance in field work and has come to be one of the principal de-match, make a body of men at a reasonable distance look like a low-lying mist.

Overcoats and even the blankets are made in the same olive tint. Of course the blue honored blue will be retained for dress and full dress uniforms.

How a Division Is Made Up.

Beginning with the company, theoretically made up of 105 men and 3 officers, the next unit is a battalion, headed by a major. This unit is, however, an elastic one, for it may be made up of two, three or four companies.

Then comes the regiment, with a colonel in command, which should have fifty-one officers, fifteen of them mounted, and 1,500 enlisted men. A regiment must be supplied with thirty pack mules, six ammunition wagons, eighteen field wagons and four extra mule teams. Then it has also its sanitary corps and its hospital troops. The colonel has to aid him a lieutenant colonel and staff exclusive of the attached company captains and battalion majors.

Three regiments make a brigade, headed by a brigadier general, who also new name for the army corps. This is made up of three divisions and is in charge of a lieutenant general.

Lost of all comes the army, which is made up of two or more field armies and commanded by the general.

Army Aviator's Success.

General William H. Carter took charge of the Texas mobilization, and army gossip expects Major General Arthur Murray to go from the command of the department of the lakes to take a hand at being "boss" also.

One incident that made the armies of the world sit up and take notice was the aviation feat of Lieutenant Foullos of the signal corps, who flew with a message from General Carter to a theoretical division commander at Leon Springs and brought back an answer in one hour and forty-five minutes.

He flew twenty-six miles in going and thirty miles coming back and was at an elevation of from 1,000 to 1,500 feet the entire time. Experts agree that if Lieutenant Foullos had been flying over an enemy one day he would have carried his message, he could both survey the country and estimate the enemy's strength and defenses.

The hardest worked of the soldiers are the 1,000 raw recruits who are being "baked into service" at a mile a minute speed. The regular army corporal is a forceful person, and any complaints to him of blistered hands or aching joints or swollen feet are liable to be answered in summary fashion.

With nearly 20,000 men with money in their pockets and willing to spend it in the sights of San Antonio, General Carter had the foresight to organize a provost guard from men of the Twenty-second infantry, who know the town, as an aid to the city police. That he was wise is evidenced by the fact that only a few arrests have been necessary, and those for minor offenses.

Cavalrymen as Cowboys.

In leisure hours the cavalrymen delight their brother soldiers and crowds of visitors by doing horseback "stunts" that none of the cowpunchers indigenous to the cattle country can excel. And they go the ranchman one better by also duplicating the feats of the Cossacks, the Argentinians, the Arabs and, in fact, all the hard riders of the world as seen in the Buffalo Bill show.

Lieutenant Foullos, the army aviator, is a remarkable personality because of his size. He is the smallest man in the service, being only about five feet four inches in height and weighing about 100 pounds. He fought his way up from the ranks and is generally conceded to be the best military almanac of the world.

A boon to the snapshot fiends is the biggest man among the foreign military attaches. He is Major Hans von Herwarth of the German army, and the uniforms in which he arrays his six feet two inches and his 220 pounds are the gayest ever seen in Texas.

The gigantic bakeshop, in charge of Captain Holbrook, absolutely enthalls the women visitors. The eighty-two bakers turn out every day 40,000 loaves of the cleanest, sweetest bread in the world, and the smell as the loaves are taken out would make the veriest dyspeptic's mouth water. A train of twelve wagons can carry the ovens.

No Place For "Valler" Dogs.

About 60,000 civilians are visiting the camp daily, and the women folks and youngsters go wild over the company mascots. Most of them are fox terriers and bulldogs, and many are good enough to command attention at a bench show. On a careful estimate there are 2,000,000 yellow dogs in Texas, and each one has tried to sneak in and enjoy the fat of the land as a mascot. But the pets know their business, and kiyis from snoring cups ascend to the zenith every few minutes.

A few Mexican hairless dogs that had the energy to cross the border have been adopted, however, but the regular mascots have very little to say to them.

As an example of the troubles the recruits are having, the following remark, made by his sergeant to one who didn't fit his horse perfectly, is worth quoting: "Hey, there, you! Sit straight in that saddle. Th' next time I spake to you about it I won't spake at all."

The teamsters have some vocabulary also. One of them was heard to say to a balky mountain battery mule: "An't you ashamed of yourself to act that a-way, you goshompalus gink? Pake up and get a move on you. What would your old parents out in Wyoming say if they could see you kicking up like this?"

And the mule was a perfect angel for the rest of the day.

Dr. Grenfell Wants Young Men To Help Him In Saving Labrador

YOUNG man, how would you like to spend this coming summer in a really cool and comfortable fall?

If the idea appeals to you and you have also a banking for novel scenery and adventure try to get Dr. William T. Grenfell to take you along with him to Labrador in June when he sails on his nineteenth annual visit to his 300,000 charges, who make their scanty living along the "iceberg coast."

The fall proposition is a new one of Dr. Grenfell's. Heretofore one of his principal activities has been assisting men to keep out of jail by teaching them the benefits of clean, decent, honest living. But he says that he had to build the fall on the Labrador coast for "boozers." Now that the boozers are all reformed there is no use left for the fall but to lodge young men willing to go to the Labrador and Newfoundland coasts to see for themselves what the "angel of Labrador" is doing and to assist in the work if their inclination leads them in that direction. It will surely do so if they fall within the spell of Dr. Grenfell's persuasion. Like all great men, he is full of his subject and eloquent and moving in his exposition of his work and its objects.

If you want a chance to help save 300,000 fellow humans from the evils and distresses of semistarvation, chronic illness and deadly tedium of life in one of the earth's back eddies follow Dr. Grenfell in his crusade. He is one of the really "worth while" men of today.

Dr. Grenfell is a medical missionary—that is, he combines the healing of the body with the healing of the spirit and adds to the distribution of the bread of life the furnishing of nutriment needed for the sustenance of the body. He brings to his work the skill of the well trained medical practitioner and the zeal of the worker in the Lord's vineyard. He is devoting his life to the cause of the Eskimo and the poor fisher folk of Labrador and Newfoundland, who have found in him the "friend in need" whose aid is so efficacious.

Labrador and Newfoundland form his field of operations. They are a world which he has made his own solely and simply for the purpose of doing good to the inhabitants thereof, with no thought of exploitation or personal gain.

In him lives again the spirit of the old time crusaders who gave themselves body and soul to a holy mission. Small wonder that the world today numbers Dr. Grenfell among its doers of noble deeds or that the folk of England and America and Canada and other parts of the earth attend him with open ear and willing hand when he calls for aid. From small beginnings he has labored to establish his Labrador mission on a firm footing, and the sun now rises above the high, bleak cliffs of his chosen field with assurance of support from men and women interested in his work.

Probably the reader has never heard of the Grenfell Association of America. It is not known as well among the people of America as it deserves. It is an association for aiding philanthropic work among the deep sea fishermen of Labrador, and it is named for the man who is devoting his life to the work. It is probably the only case in the history of the world of an association of philanthropic men and women formed to assist in the furtherance of the labors of one man. Its headquarters are in New York city, and it was incorporated under the laws of the state of New York in 1907. The president of the association is Dr. Henry van Dyke, the well known divine and poet.

Dr. Grenfell arrived recently in New York from England, which country he had been visiting in the interests of his work. His program in this country before his leaving for his field of operations in Labrador included several lectures on his life work.

He is to have won a new boat to assist him in providing for the wants of the third of a million men, women and children who are his own especial charges. This is to be a three masted auxiliary schooner for carrying freight to and from and among Dr. Grenfell's stations on the Newfoundland and Labrador coasts. She is to become part of the Grenfell fleet, which will include, besides the new schooner, the steam yacht Strathcona, the yawl Andrew J. McCosh, presented to Dr. Grenfell by students of Princeton university in 1909 as a memorial to Dr. Andrew J.

Dr. Grenfell Wants Young Men To Help Him In Saving Labrador

McCosh, the well known doctor killed in a New York street by an automobile, and the Yale, a launch presented by Yale men.

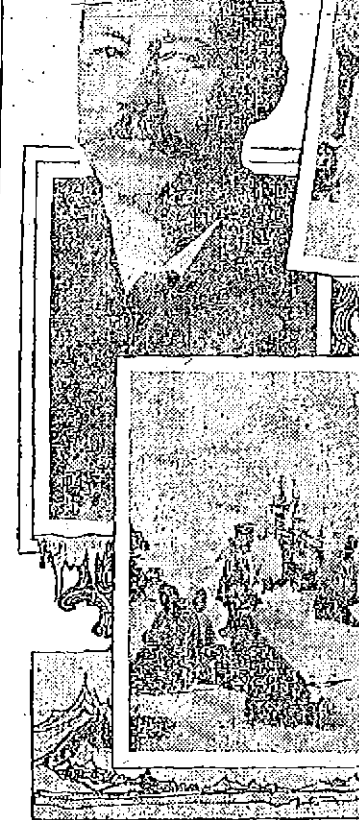

In 1902 Dr. Grenfell went to Labrador as a missionary doctor. He spent three months on the coast, holding services and treating 900 sick folks. Now, in this year of grace 1911, so greatly has his work grown in eighteen years, he has five doctors, four nurses and two lay missionaries regularly employed among the poor people of Labrador working to protect them from the illness, starvation and injustice to which their outlying station among the world's peoples in a rigorous climate and on a sterile soil has exposed them in the past. In the summer Dr. Grenfell's assistants are more numerous, as they are then recruited from the college people and others who find ick Treves, the first physician ever in those waters, Dr. Grenfell took up the job. That he has proved himself the man for it is a matter of worldwide history.

Dr. Grenfell is law and gospel to the coast. There is more than one man usefully employed behind prison walls who hates this resolute fighter as heartily as most men love him. He is not only a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, but a registered master mariner, a crown magistrate and the Lloyd's agent for Labrador, so his ability to hit hard when occasion requires is evident.

To sum him up, Dr. Grenfell is his work. What is the work? Well, on the bows of every vessel of his fleet are the motto, "French the Word" and "Heal the Sick." And on the brass rim of the wheel that steers each ship is graven "Jesus saith follow me, and I will make you fishers of men."

A typical adventure of his occurred one June (think of it) night a few years ago. He had left Battle harbor, Labrador, to attend some patients at a set-time in the warm months to remember their less fortunate brothers and sisters.

In his work Dr. Grenfell is ably assisted also by his wife, who was Miss Anna McClanahan of Chicago. They met on an ocean steamer a year ago last June. They were married after a brief courtship, and there is now a little Wilfrid T. Grenfell, Jr., born last September, to grow up among the fisher folk, whose ideas of goodness and advice and assistance in their difficulties are embodied in a quiet, able product of Marlborough school, Oxford university, London hospital and the university of humanity.

When Evangelist Moody put into the heart of a rich blooded conventional young Englishman of the Oxford type, whose name is still remembered in college football and track athletics, the purpose to do something worth while for his Master the great revivalist lighted the dream that he was sending light and healing to the unfortunates who live so near the arctic zone. Dr. Grenfell made no fuss about his conversion. He just hunted up some missionary work of his own and found it in a Sunday school with a class of exceptionally tough youngsters.

But when the superintendent found that the cause of one boy's black eye was the new teacher's right fist Dr. Grenfell was "chucked out," as he himself expresses it.

Then came a call to Oxford for some one to go to the North sea fishermen as a missionary doctor and, following the example of the famous Sir Frederlement ten miles away and was traveling over the ice behind a pack of dogs when he found himself being driven off the coast by a moving ice field. Before he could turn he was in an area of broken drift ice, and the dogs went into the water, dragging him with them. In the struggle to get out the dogs attempted to climb on his back, and he was obliged to fight them off before he could climb on to a sufficiently large piece of the drift. Then he helped the dogs, but had to let the sled go to the bottom.

With the wind blowing a gale, the temperature 10 below zero and night at hand and his clothing saturated, the doctor would have speedily been frozen to death but for his luckiness. Taking off his skin boots, he cut them in halves and placed the pieces over his chest and back to shield those parts of his body from the blast. Then he determined to kill three of the dogs, not only to furnish him more warmth, but to supply the other brasts with food, fearing that in their hungry desperation they would tear him to pieces.

Even as it was they attacked him, and he was bitten terribly about the hands and legs. He wrapped himself in the skins of the dead dogs, but had to keep running about on the floe most of the night to keep his blood in circulation. In the morning he froze the legs of the dead dogs into a pole and tied part of his shirt to it. His novel flag of distress was seen a few hours later by some fishermen in Locke's cove, and the doggy doctor was rescued.

ent ruling a soldier's full field equipment—which used to be known as heavy marching order—consists of a Springfield magazine rifle, nine and a half pounds; ninety rounds of cartridges, four and a half pounds; a bayonet and scabbard, a rifle sling, a cartridge belt, with suspenders, a first aid packet, a canteen and strap, a set of blanket roll straps, a haversack, a meat can, one cup, one plate, one spoon, one knife, one fork, half a shelter tent, one tent pole and five tent pegs. Then there is his field kit, consisting of a blanket, a poncho, comb, toothbrush, soap, towel and extra underwear.

Has Still More Burdens.

This certainly is a lot of material to be squeezed into fifty-four pounds, but, like the camel, the man in blue has an added stray in the intrenching tools. A company has to take along four hand-partments of the army. If you pile a dug as far away from camp as possible the main tent is pitched, and you bottle the man who leaves the slightest bit of dirt in the camp streets. At intervals the pits are covered with cloth, and is soaked with powerful disinfectants, and incineration is also used wherever possible.

There should never be a duplication of the Spanish-American war statistics, which show that camp fever carried off ten times more men than did the bullets of the enemy.

Then there is the question of up to date apparel and the question of making it up in as nearly an invisible line as possible. The khaki trousers and the blue flannel shirt have been tabooed, and the new uniforms are of olive drab cotton, including the shirt. These, with tan leggings and shoes to

Next comes the division, which is composed of three infantry brigades, a regiment of cavalry, two regiments of artillery, a battalion of the signal corps, an ammunition train, a supply train, four ambulance companies, a field hospital and reserve supplies. A major general commands a division, has his personal staff and controls about 20,000 men, the number sent to Texas.

The regular attached officers, lieutenants, captains, majors, colonels and all others in direct command of any body of men are called line officers. Those who are not in direct command, but who for the time being are serving as a sort of advisory board for one higher in command and are members of his personal staff, are called staff officers.

After this comes the field army, the

WOMEN DROWNED

Twenty Lost in Wreck of the Steamer Iroquois

VICTORIA, B. C., April 11.—Nearly twenty women on board the wooden steamer Iroquois which foundered yesterday, near Sydney, Vancouver Island, are drowned.

Twelve of the deckhouse of the boat broke in two. The women were struggling while the boat broke in two. They were beating against the glass of the saloon windows when the survivors clambered up to struggle up the side of the deck. Harry Hartnell, brother of the drowned Edward, was seen adrift on a door and was rescued by Indians. At Coal Island, the sea cast up the body of Miss Isabel Fenwick. She had no life preserver and had tried to reach shore

ON COBURN LOT

Big Apartment House to be Built

It is stated that the new owner of the Coburn property adjoining the city's public library building will erect a 35 apartment house, four stories in height, on the land in question. Plans have already been drawn and are being figured upon by Boston contractors. The building will be of brick with pebbly stucco and plaster coating and will occupy the entire Merrimack street frontage of the Coburn lot. It is understood that the depth of the building will be about one-third of the distance back to Moody street. It will contain 35 separate apartments fully equipped with modern conveniences. The cost of the new structure will be in the vicinity of $50,000.

Our building ordinances do not provide for the kind of structure called for in the plans, but it is presumed that the inspector of buildings will issue the permit providing that the walls are of the required thickness. Application for the permit to build, however, has not yet been made and the plans referred to are tentative, and were prepared by the Boston architect who planned the Keith theatre in Bridge street.

This club is composed of members of the Lowell aerie who are interested in the parade and participate in the big field day which is to be held in Lawrence on July 27.

The committee voted to wear uniforms and a delegation will go to Boston in a few days and visit the different costumes and decide what the uniform shall be. Their report together with the reports of the sub-committees will be presented at the next meeting of the aerie.

VOL. LIFE SAVERS

Sec. Callahan Raising Funds in Lowell

Secretary M. J. Callahan of the New England Life Savers' association, was a visitor in this city yesterday for the purpose of raising subscriptions for the work along the New England coast this season. The volunteer life savers' force is composed of 32 men who patrol the coast from Salisbury to Portland during the summer months. They have stations at Salisbury, York and Portland.

Last year they saved 27 lives between June 1 and Sept. 15, besides giving assistance to many small boats in distress. Their greatest need just now, in view of the long stretch of coast they have to cover, is for a power boat properly equipped for life saving service.

The work is supported entirely by voluntary contributions.

Case of Rabbi Wolfson vs. Louis Price on Trial Today

Mystery Surrounds Death of Twin Babies

Abdelmasseh and Namatallah, Masoud, twin boys, five weeks old, died at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Masoud, 32 Adams street, on the morning of March 27th, and were buried in the Edison cemetery on the morning of the same day. The sudden death of the baby boys brought great sorrow to the home that knew them but for a little while and the Syrian colony in Adams and Suffolk streets is much excited over the cause of their death. They said that death, in both cases, was due to gastro enteritis.

The broken-hearted mother, however, feels that her dear ones may have been poisoned by something given them to eat and she mentions lime water. The babies were all right, she said, when she retired for the night and when she awoke at 4 o'clock in the morning one of them was dead and the other was dying. She called a doctor but it was too late. The angel of death had cut short their visit here and a few hours later their little bodies were deposited in the "coffin" and transferred to their last resting place.

Mrs. Masoud was seen by a reporter for The Sun this afternoon and in words broken by sobs she told her sad little story. Mrs. Masoud talks English fairly well. "I sent my husband out for some lime water on the Saturday night before my babies died," she said, "and I fed them milk and lime water, Saturday night and Sunday. All day Sunday they appeared to be all right. Monday morning I awoke at 4 o'clock. One of my poor little babies was dead and the other was dying. I called for the doctor but it was no use then. Some said the lime water killed them and some said the milk was bad. I thought if the lime water was bad I will know and I took some myself. It did not make me sick. My husband bought the lime water in a drug store in Merrimack street. I don't know what store. The doctor said the babies were not poisoned, that they died like other babies."

Poor Mrs. Masoud said she would never forget the feeling she had when she found one of her little ones dead and the other dying. She said she felt as if somebody had stuck a knife into her heart and it was some minutes before she recovered from the terrible shock. It was stated this afternoon that an inquiry as to the cause of death would be made by the proper authorities.

AMERICAN WOMEN

Imprisoned and Insulted by the Mexican Filibusterers

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 11.—Mexican filibusterers held several American women and children captive in a stockade at Alamo, Lowell, California, it became known today. The prisoners are said to be at the mercy of their captors and to have suffered insults and indignities. Protests have been made to Secretary of State Knox and Senator Perkins, chairman of the senate committee on naval affairs, has been advised.

Among these held captive are G.
Raffi, his wife and five children of San Diego. The names of the others have not been disclosed. The appeal to Secretary Knox was made by O. Henry Savage of this city, a relative of Mrs.
Raffi.

News of the condition of the prisoners was brought to Ensenada last week.
Savage said today, and reported to George Schmucker, United States consul, as well as to Gov. Cohn Vega of Lower California. Savage charged that Vega did not send relief and that Schmucker ignored the complaint.

Feeling for the welfare of the prisoners in the hands of the rebels who were said to be commanded by Simon Berthold, Savage wired Secretary Knox
Sunday afternoon as follows:

"Members of my family and other American women and children held at Alamo, Mexico, by rebels. Unable to obtain food or relief. Wires to Ensenada are down. Relatively informed that Mexican governor of Lower California declines relief. Will you order warship to Ensenada to rescue? Please answer.

(Signed) "O. Henry Savage."

The following telegram was received by Mr. Savage yesterday:

"The ambassador at Mexico City has been instructed by telegram to request the Mexican government to extend protection to the American citizens mentioned in your telegram of yesterday, and the American consul at Ensenada has been instructed by telegram to investigate and report and to ask the governor for needed protection for these people.
(Signed) "Phillander Knox."

State Senator Wright telegraphed news of the situation to Senator Perkins yesterday afternoon and he hoped that the latter would use his influence at Washington to secure quick action.
The case was also taken to Rear Admiral Thomas, commander of the Pacific fleet, who was urged by Savage to send a warship to Ensenada.

Admiral Thomas said that he could not act without orders from Washington.

All attempts today to secure information on the subject from the American consul at Ensenada have failed and no statement can be secured from the Mexican officials in Lower California.

GUILD DAY ILLUSTRATIONS

Hundreds of Young Women Out Col- lecting for the Milk Station

This is "Guild Day" and the young women of the Lowell Guild who distributed subscription envelopes throughout the city last Friday, collected them today, and while the total sum collected is not yet known, the collectors reported progress all along the line. The money was deposited by the collectors at the Lowell Institution for Savings in Slattuck street and the total amount of the collections will be made known later.

The envelopes distributed by the young women of the Guild, contained copies of the following slip which gives an outline of the work carried on by the Guild:

The Lowell Guild asks for your financial support for its work for this year. The object of the Guild is to assist the sick and relieve the suffering, by means of its visiting nurses and milk station, where modified milk is provided for babies.

The visiting nurse goes on call of a physician to any part of the city and makes daily visits as long as necessary. It is expected that each patient shall pay a nominal fee for this service, but where that is impossible, the service is given free. It is hard to estimate the amount of good which these nurses accomplish or what a blessing they have proved to young and old throughout the city.

The work is dependent upon voluntary contributions for its support, and the trustees take this method of reaching a large number of people, hoping that everyone will contribute generously. Small sums will be gratefully received and larger ones especially welcome.

If you can only afford to give 10 cents, please give that; but if you can make it dollars (and many of them) do so, and help in carrying out this valuable work which is of importance to the entire city.

The success and growth of this work depend upon your contribution. Do

To Ball Game on Cap- itol Grounds

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Members of the supreme court, dignified senators and representatives suspended business for a time today to attend a baseball game on the capitol grounds between players and messenger boys, employed in the chambers of the national legislature. While the supreme court justices maintained their judicial calm, senators and representatives "rooted" for the respective teams. The game came to an abrupt end when a youthful player on the senate team fell into a fountain while endeavoring to get under a fly.

seven corpses were taken out during ground and comprising the plant of the Columbian Canning company, her-today. The loss is estimated at between $25,000 and $35,000, on which there is an insurance of $19,000. The cause of the fire, which started in the boiler, is not known. The plant was two stories high.

CUSSING BARRED

Lawrence Women Start Crusade on Profanity

LAWRENCE, April 11.—The opening gun in a crusade against profanity on the city's streets was fired at a meeting of the board of aldermen last night when petitions were read from 900 women of Lawrence, requesting that measures be employed to cope with the evil. The petition was referred to the city marshal for enforcement.

The petition to Mayor Cahill was as follows:

To His Honor, John T. Cahill,
Mayor of Lawrence:
In view of the increasing prevalence of profane and impure language on our streets, in cars and other public places, and realizing it as a menace to the morals of our young people, especially our children, and believing that such language is derogative not only to reverence for our Creator, but also to a spirit of respect for that law and order necessary to foster and maintain civic righteousness in our youth and the people coming to our shores.

We, the undersigned women of Lawrence, would respectfully call the attention of your honor to the above signed laws relative to the use of profane language and request you to take measures for its enforcement. The petition was signed by 900 women.

The committee follows: Mrs. E. D.
Kincaid, Mrs. E. M. Lake, Mrs. A. M.
Brackett, Mrs. Ida C. Blackwell, Mrs.
Lizzie A. Dawson, Mrs. Julia B. Lyman,
Mrs. Elizabeth S. Dunne, Mrs. H. G.
Mann, Mrs. Thomas C. Atchison.

The petition to the aldermen was somewhat similar to that sent to Mayor Cahill, with this addition:

Revised Laws, Chapter 213, Sec. 23—Whoever, having arrived at the age of discretion, profanely curses or swears, shall be punished by a fine of not more than five dollars nor less than one dollar.

We would also suggest that you have the law and penalty printed in the different languages of the people who reside here and posted in conspicuous places that no unfair advantage be taken of those who have no newspaper in their own language and who are ignorant of our laws.

CLARK SCARED

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Speaker
Clark was given a suffragette scare today. As he approached the house chamber he heard a steady beat of the gavel and assumed that the pages were holding a mock session. As he passed through the swinging doors he was surprised to find half of the members seats filled with women and a determined looking presiding officer occupying his chair. She appeared to be having difficulty in obtaining order.

"What does it mean? Is it a suffragette invasion?" Mr. Clark inquired over his shoulder as he beat a hasty retreat.

The speaker was relieved to learn that the invaders were Brooklyn school ma'ams seeing Washington. At the approach of noon when the regular session was to convene they obediently retired to the galleries.

House Minority Leader Mann Submits List of Republican Appointments on Committees—Effort Made to Show Impartiality Toward Insurgents

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The standing committees of the house of representatives were elected by that body today, after the full committee lists had been presented by Chairman Underwood, of the ways and means committee. The republican members of the respective committees became known for the first time when the full committee assignments were presented to the house.

Prepared by Minority Leader James R. Mann at the direction of the republican caucus, the minority committee selections contained many surprises for the house. The desire to accord impartial treatment to the insurgent republicans is shown in the number of choice committee places given to them by Mr. Mann. Two of the leading insurgent representatives, Madison of Kansas, and Lenroot of Wisconsin, are given places on the rules committee, when the republicans have but four places.

Representative Good of Iowa is appointed to the appropriations committee, considered a particularly choice berth. Representative Haugen of Iowa is made ranking republican member of the committee on agriculture; Representative Kopp of Wisconsin is placed on the naval committee; Representative North of Nebraska on the judiciary committee, and other insurgents receive important assignments.

Former Speaker Cannon becomes ranking republican member of the appropriations committee. He was chairman of this committee for several years before he became speaker, and the retirement of James A. Tawney, recently chairman of the committee, will probably make the former speaker the republican leader in debates on appropriation matters.

Minority Leader Mann took no committee assignments himself, and will act solely as chairman of the minority conference. His place as ranking member of the interstate and foreign commerce committee goes to Frederick C. Stevens, of Minnesota. The republican list includes the assignment of Victor L. Berger, the Wisconsin socialist, to the committee on district of Columbia affairs, and the assignment of Theron Akin, the New York independent democrat, the committees on education and on enrolled bills. Are Released From Prison in Belgium

BRUSSELS, Belgium, April 11.—The local papers this morning published a story concerning Ralph Brandreth of New York and Auguste Mathias, the latter being described as the New Yorker's secretary, in which it is affirmed that through the intervention of the minister of justice the two men have been released from prison after serving only 20 days of a two years' sentence.

According to the published account Brandreth and Mathias were arrested on March 5, charged with having swindled the proprietor of a hotel and were subsequently sentenced to imprisonment as "vags." The papers state that an investigation started by the minister of justice convinced him that Brandreth was an American millionaire.

NO COLOR LINE

Cornell Refuses to Bar Two Colored Women

ITHACA, April 11.—"Colored students have resided in Sage college in the past and I see no good reason why that policy should be changed. At Cornell all university doors must remain open to all students, irrespective of race or color, creed or social standing or pecuniary condition."

This is the answer of Cornell university to the petition signed by many co-eds begging the authorities to refuse admission to the dormitories of Sage college to Rosa Vassar, of Lynchburg, Va., and Pauline Ray, of Geneva, two young colored women students.

The college of the university is given out in a letter from President Schurman to Mrs. Gertrude Martin, advisor of women, who forwarded to him the petitions in the case.

In his letter to Mrs. Martin the president says he has received two petitions, one signed by 269 co-eds begging that the colored students be denied admission to Sage; the other signed by thirty-six students protesting against any discrimination on the ground of color.

Dr. Schurman further says "the last colored woman student who resided at Sage college writes me that she was politely and considerately treated by the other women students and that these years of residence there were the happiest of her life. Though I am compelled to deny the petition of the 269 women students I have not a particle of doubt that they will make the lives of the two incoming colored students equally happy and memorable."

This statement of the president will, it is believed, end the controversy.

NIGHT EDITION

Noted Ohio Democratic Leader Passed Away

CLEVELAND, O., April 11.—Tom L. Johnson, twice congressman from the twenty-first Ohio district, four times mayor of Cleveland, champion of 3-cent railway fare, and prominent advocate of the single tax theories of the late Henry George, died in his apartment in the White Hall at 845 last night, after a long illness. Death was caused by cirrhosis of the liver. He was 57 years old.

Mr. Johnson had been ill more than a year, but his condition was not thought serious until he suffered a relapse on Wednesday, March 15. He had been gaining strength ever since he came home after spending the summer on Nanuck Island. On Saturday night, March 11, he left his apartment and attended a banquet at the Nisi Prius club, an organization of Cleveland lawyers. He remained there until 2 a. m. Sunday, and when he returned home he complained of not feeling well.

The following Wednesday his condition was such that he was obliged to go to bed. From that day to the time of his death his condition was grave, though several times he rallied amazingly. Although he realized he did not have long to live, he was cheerful and optimistic to the end.

Tom L. Johnson was one of the most picturesque figures in American politics. He was mayor of Cleveland for four terms, a member of congress before that for two terms, and a presidential possibility before each of the last two democratic national conventions—for about a minute. He was a millionaire, self-made. He suffered a change of heart—and then lost most of his fortune.

In 1905 while Mr. Johnson was mayor of Cleveland he was nominated for governor by the democrats of Ohio, but was unsuccessful at the election.

One of the first things he did after suffering a change of heart and before losing his millions was to fight for a three-cent fare on the Cleveland street railways. And that is remarkable in that he himself would be the chief loser, for he held large traction interests in the city. At that many of his fellow-citizens declared the proposition to give Cleveland a three-cent fare was sheer fraud, designed to mask the evil management of the street car lines.

It is probable most of the criticisms heaped upon him was undeserved. He had a motto, "Do as I say—not as I do," which best illustrated how far he was inclined to fool himself about himself.

Monopolist at 13
Tom Johnson—Tom was his real name, not Thomas—was born in Scott county, Kentucky, on July 13, 1854, of an aristocracy that had gone to seed financially at least. He was not bred to the people. He was an ambitious youth, as is testified by the fact that at the tender age of 13 he had become a monopolist. He handled all the papers in the town of Staunton, Va., where he lived, by contract.

Begins Railroading
Street railroading claimed him at the age of 17 at Louisville. A year later he had invented a steel rail that is still in use. He devised a nickel tool for hobnail cars. The foundations of his fortune had been laid. At 22 he controlled the Indianapolis Street Railroad company—grabbed it, he admitted later.

In 1884 he went to Cleveland and obtained control of a small street car line there. In the same year he began the manufacture of steel rails. He branched out in other directions. Wall street heard of him, welcomed him as a nice fat lamb, until it learned by experience of the wolf beneath.

As a politician, he was unique. He would illustrate his speeches with incidents from his own life, showing how easy it was for the other fellow to pick franchises out of the municipal pocket. While mayor of Cleveland, he broke all the laws that got in his way during the fight he made against the traction consolidation. Some of the papers predicted every other election that he would get land inside a jail.

Struggles for Naught
But his "seven years' struggle" for 3-cent fares and municipal socialism all went for naught. He lost his money and his health. He had not been well for two years.

HE DIED SMILING
CLEVELAND, April 11.—During his last illness, Tom L. Johnson, who died last night, was requested to write his autobiography in the birthday book of Miss Louise Graham, a friend of the family. Mr. Johnson signed his name to the following quotation:
"The face was a thanksgiving for his past life and a love letter to all mankind."

When Arthur Fuller, the chauffeur for Mr. Johnson, visited the patient, Sunday afternoon, he remarked that his employer was still smiling.
"Yes, Arthur, I believe I am dying but I still have my smile and am going to die smiling," replied the former mayor.
And he died, smiling.

CLEVELAND, O., April 11.—The body of former Mayor Tom L. Johnson, who died last night, will be laid to rest Thursday in the Johnson family lot, Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y., in the very shadow of the monument that marks the grave of Henry George, the great single-taxer, whose disciple Johnson was. This, together with the information that in accordance with the dead man's wishes, there will be no public services here, was announced today following a meeting at the home of City Solicitor Baker.

Cleveland's only opportunity to pay tribute to the former mayor will come Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock when the body will be taken from the Johnson family apartments to the station to be sent to Brooklyn. The route by which the body will be conveyed has been announced, so that the people of the city can view the cortege.

The funeral service will be held at 11:30 o'clock Thursday morning at Greenwood cemetery. Rev. H. R. Cooley, a close friend of Mr. Johnson and head of the city administration while Mr. Johnson was mayor, will have charge.

HIS THIRD VETO

Gov. Turns Down Marlboro Fire Dept. Bill

BOSTON, April 11.—The third veto message which Gov. Foss has laid before the legislature this year came into the house today with his excellency's disapproval of a bill changing the eligibility rules of the Marlboro fire department. Governor Foss in his message said he did not see why Marlboro should have different eligibility rules from those of other cities and towns.

MANDAMUS CASE

Lawrence Officials Are Called Into Court

BOSTON, April 11.—Judge Sheldon of the superior court has issued an order of notice returning on Tuesday, upon a petition for a writ of mandamus directing members of the Lawrence city council to meet in joint convention to elect a city treasurer and collector of taxes. The petitioners are Aldermen Jordan, Connelley, Noonan, Colgan, Fay, O'Donnell, Welch, Ulrich and J. M. O'Day.

It is claimed in the petition that the common council is ready to meet the board to elect a treasurer and collector of taxes, but that the aldermen have refused to meet in convention.

Cornelius E. Sullivan is candidate for the office of city treasurer, now held by William A. Kelleher, owing to the failure to elect his successor. Join the failure to elect the democratic candidate, he is said to have withdrawn. The aldermen refused to meet the council by a vote of four to two. The council voted to hold the convention.

LONG CONFERENCE

ON ARBITRATION TREATY HELD TODAY

WASHINGTON, April 11.—James Bryce, the British ambassador, Secretary of State Knox and Chandler Anderson, counselor of the state department, today held another long conference in regard to the proposed arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain.

Progress is being made in the negotiations for the convention, it is declared, and the ambassador is still confident that the document will be completed in ample time for submission to the senate for ratification. No obstacles have yet been encountered or are to slight which would impede the successful consummation of the treaty. The Anglo-Japanese alliance, it is believed here, offers no stimulating block to the treaty.

CONCEALED WEAPONS
PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 11.—As a result of the numerous stabbing and shooting affrays in and around this city recently, a bill increasing the penalty for carrying concealed weapons was introduced in the legislature today by Hon. Harry Cutler of Providence. The act provides that the penalty shall be a fine of $500 or one year imprisonment instead of $200 and six months as at present.

STOCK MARKET

LEHIGH VALLEY AND MISSOURI PACIFIC GAINED AT OPENING

Fertilizer Stocks Weak, Followed by a Break—Coppers Were Neglected—Market Closed Firm

NEW YORK, April 11.—There were few changes from yesterday's close at the opening of the market today. Lehigh Valley and Mo. Pac. gained 1/2, and Ann. Cotton Oil lost as much. Most of the speculative leaders were quoted without change over night.

A break in the prices of fertilizer stocks and other inactive specialties was the only movement of consequence in the first hour. Virgin. Cotton Oil dropped 2 points, Virginia Carolina Chem. 1 and the pf. 2 1/2. National Biscuit lost 1 1/2 and United Rys. Investment 1 1/2.

Concentrated selling with but only scattered buying imparted a weak tone to the market and prices fell to the lowest level of some days. Heaviness was marked in the standard issues, including U. S. Steel and U. S. Steel stock broke under 77 on a sale of 2300 shares, which was more than the total of dealings in this stock in the first hour. Weakness in the fertilizer issues was ascribed to doubt as to the maintenance of the dividend on American Cotton Oil. St. Paul, Northwest, Virgin. Elec. first pf. and Ann. Copper declined a point below yesterday's closing and some other less active stocks even more. Bonds were steady.

Persistent liquidations of the minor specialties kept the general market under pressure but there was not much selling of the usual leaders. The Canadian group weakened materially and there were losses also of four points in United Railroads and investments and 2 1/2 in Nat'l Bds.

A better undertone developed and there was a slight recovery all around. Trading, which had been fairly active while the decline was in progress, tapered into semi-stagnation. Some very large blocks of New York City new 4 1/2 per cent. bonds changed hands at 103 1/2 to 102, compared with 102 yesterday's closing.

The market closed steady. Some of the leaders rallied their shorts put out earlier in the day and this demand sent Mo. Pac. to nearly a point above yesterday's close. On March 27 and the rally was very slight. Trading was very small in the late dealings.

DOOR WAS LOCKED

When Fire Broke Out in Shirt Waist Factory

NEW YORK, April 11.—At the grand jury investigation today into the Washington place fire, where more than 140 persons, mostly working girls, lost their lives, Detective Flood produced the remains of a lock which had been attached to a door on the ninth floor. The lock had been closed, indicating to the prosecutors that the door to which it had been attached had been closed and locked. Detective Flood testified that it was against this door that the charred bodies of many working girls were found.

TO PHILIPPINES TOLD FORTUNES PRETTY FROSTY

Two Young Women Go to be Married And Woman Spiritualist Landed In Court

BOSTON, April 11.—The departure of Miss Alma Brown of Pawtucket, R. I., for the Philippines yesterday revealed a romantic love affair, and a double wedding to come. At Manila, Miss Brown will become the bride of Clarence M. Whittle, a teacher in the government high school in the Philippine metropolis. On her way she will be joined by Miss Grace Wheeler of Greenview, Ohio, who will marry Guy Harris, another teacher in the government school at Manila.

The double wedding will be celebrated the middle of May, and both couples will settle down to housekeeping in Manila. Miss Brown, who has passed the civil service examinations, will take up teaching, probably at San Fernando.

Miss Brown first met Mr. Whittle while he was at Brown and she was attending Pembroke, the woman's college there. Their daily meetings developed a mutual affection that continued after Mr. Whittle had left for the Philippines. A short while ago he sent to Miss Brown the message, "Come."

Miss Brown has varied accomplishments, especially in the dramatic line. While at Pembroke she was a member of the Comings, a select society that produced plays. In addition she was a member of a Greek letter society, considered one of the most desirable in the college.

Miss Brown and Miss Wheeler will be accompanied as far as Chicago by the former's father, and from there will continue their journey without him to San Francisco, thence by ship for Manila.

REP. MURDOCK

GETS AFTER PRINTED SPEECHES FOR "HOME CONSUMPTION"

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Representative Murdock, the militant Kansas insurgent, today aimed a deadly blow at the time-honored custom which permits members of congress to print "speeches" in the congressional record that were not delivered in the house.

Murdock proposes that hereafter the record shall show in plain black face type that such speeches were not actually spoken but appear under a "leave to print."

He believes that a resolution introduced today to that effect will pass the house, despite the fact that it would destroy one of the greatest assets of the obscure congressman who prints speeches for home consumption and campaign purposes.

BALTIC CRUISE

REAR ADMIRAL BADGER WILL COMMAND

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger, U. S. N., was yesterday assigned to the command of the second division of the Atlantic fleet, which will shortly cruise to the Baltic sea. Visits will be made to Denmark, Sweden, Russia and Germany. The division is composed of the battleships Louisiana, South Carolina, New Hampshire and Kansas. They will leave New York about May 10, returning to Cape Cod Bay early in July.

Hundreds of Visiting Alumni at the Exercises

BOSTON, April 11.—Visiting alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who are celebrating the 50th anniversary of the granting of the institute's charter, crowded the halls of the Technology buildings today, visiting the many laboratories and listening to various papers on the achievements in technical science during the past 50 years.

All of the regular exercises of the institute were discontinued at 11 o'clock and the undergraduates mingled with the returning alumni, whose work has been so conspicuous in the development of modern industry.

Papers dealing with metallurgical problems and with the different industrial processes were read by Albert E. Greene of Chicago, Prof. Henry Fay of the Institute, Prof. Sauvcur of Niagara Falls, N. Y., followed by outlines on improvements in cotton bleaching by W. S. Williams of Boston and of coal combustion recorders by Prof. A. H. Gill of Technology. A review of recent industrial development followed.

Prof. Walker's address
BOSTON, April 11.—In a plea for a more general publication of results obtained in modern industrial research laboratories, Prof. William H. Walker, professor of industrial chemistry, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, speaking upon "The Spirit of Alchemy in Modern Industry," declared that the spirit of the old alchemy—namely secrecy—was still in force, and depriving the world of much knowledge that the discoverers could share without harm to themselves.

"There is a heavy moral obligation on the part of large industrial organizations having fully equipped research laboratories," said Professor Walker, "to contribute their share to the advance of the world's knowledge. There is in every laboratory much work which could be published and yet conserve the interests of the corporation. First—there are results which may not have proved valuable to the laboratory in which they were obtained, but which would be of immense value to someone else working in an entirely different field. Second—there are those results of value to the laboratory possessing them, but which could be published in an unapplied or 'pure' form and which would make an important contribution to science and at the same time the publication would work no injury to the company or corporation most interested. And finally there are those results of operations and processes, machines and apparatus which, if the truth were known, are positively manifest in our body politic."

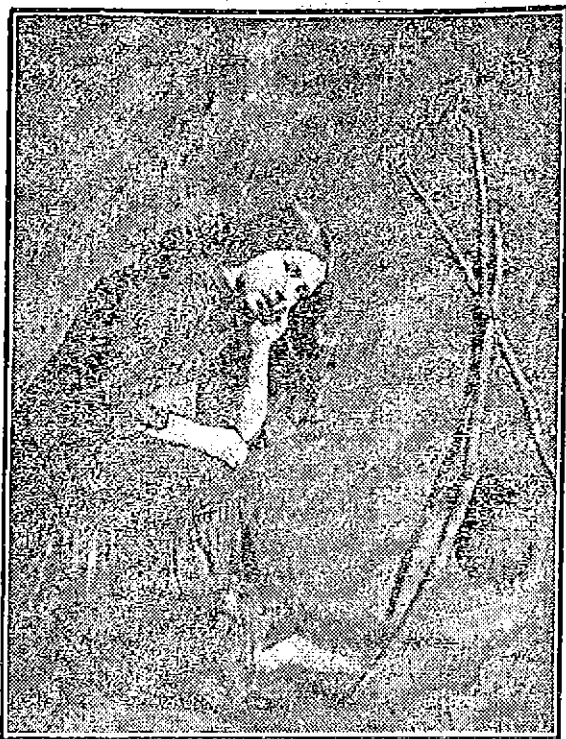

After knocking a domestic, Miss Mary Branch, senseless, a burglar ransacked the home of James L. Phetteplace in the East Side this afternoon only to become frightened and leave his loot behind. The man came to the door this afternoon and after receiving a negative reply to his inquiry if the ladies were in, he hurried to the beach and entered the house. Knocking the girl unconscious, he hurried through the house, gathering up jewelry and other valuables. Becoming frightened, however, the thief after tying up the loot, dropped it in the basement hallway and fled. The police were scouring the neighborhood for traces of him this afternoon.

BY COMMISSION

Gov. Wilson Wants That Form for Cities

TRENTON, N. J., April 11.—Governor Wilson, in a special message to the legislature, urges the passage of a bill giving to a commission the form of government that provides for the legislative, referendum and recall. The governor says:

"The changes proposed are not experimental; they have been tested by abundant experience elsewhere and I am sure that it would afford all thoughtful persons cause for serious disappointment if the legislature should not avail itself of this opportunity to show itself allied in this matter, as in all others with the pulses of progress now so handsomely manifest in our body politic."

"A-BA-BE'S"

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

There is always something doing between 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon and 10:30 o'clock at the Merrimack Square theatre and this week the management presents an excellent bill of vaudeville and daylight moving pictures. This theatre is noted for the excellence of its moving pictures—the kind that do not tire the eye, and the vaudeville which is interspersed with the pictures is of the highest order. As manager Carroll says "We appreciate the patronage of the Lowell people since the opening of the theatre and therefore there is nothing too good for the theatre goers of that city." The high standard of the weekly bills at the Merrimack Square theatre has resulted in the house being packed afternoon and evening.

Adams and Dahn, clever tight wire walkers, who are in a class by themselves perform may hair raising stunts, with a little comedy intermingled. The young lady is exceptionally clever and glides along the wire with apparently as much ease and grace as though she was tripping along the street. The man performs many difficult feats, the audience expecting every minute to see him fall to the stage, but no matter what position he gets into he always manages to regain his equilibrium. His stunt of jumping from the wire into a barrel and jumping out again is one of the cleverest pieces of wire work ever witnessed in this city. Adams and Dahn travel with a circus during the summer time, and in the winter appear on the stage.

"A-BA-BE'S" is a unique feature. It is known as a pictorial past card inbum and introduces a series of miniature tableaux and child poses from the following subjects:

The Gleaner, Red Riding Hood, Homeless, Rock of Ages, Dutch Milkmaid, How Slowly the Time Goes, The Gypsy, Skylark, Ora Pro Nobis and Good Night.

Cameron and Howard are all to the merry in their comedy sketch and pianologue. The young lady is an expert on the piano and tickles the ivories in a manner that even appeals to those who are not musically inclined. She is also a good vocalist. The male member of the duo has a pleasing voice and sings many new songs and appears to good effect in character impersonations.

The scenic quartet, composed of three men and a woman, sing several selections which please the audience. There is little or no need to comment on the excellence of the pictures for all who have attended this theatre are unanimous in their expression that the pictures are the latest and finest shown in any theatre in this vicinity.

Performances will be given between 1:30 and 10:30 p. m. every day this week with the exception of Good Friday on which day the theatre will be "dark."

CHARLES J. HAINES
Opera House Stock Company

THE OPERA HOUSE

"The House of a Thousand Candles," presented at the Opera House this week, was an artistic success last night, as it was played by the members of the Thompson-Flynn stock company.

The play was interesting throughout and well presented. It develops most extraordinary situations. Beginning with a will by which an old man leaves his property to his grandson, and said old man appearing on the scene later when all believed him dead, the action of the production introduces the proverbial villain who tries to force the document and is foiled. Many exciting situations arise in the development of the story. In the end, all terminates happily, as the grandson and the fair one whose hand he has sought, meet at the altar.

The most important part was taken by Forrest Stanley, as the butler, who has knowledge of the will, and who antagonizes the villain at all times. Mr. Stanley's acting as usual was very strong and proved once more that there is no part too difficult for him. Benedict MacQuarrie, as the grandson, is another member of the company who deserves recognition, for he played his lines very well. Miss Frances Whitehouse, whose ability is well known and always appreciated by the patrons of this theatre, was again in the leading role, that of Marion Devereaux. Her acting was of the most exquisite kind and it contributed largely to the success of the play.

Frank Christie as Larry Donovan was the man who furnished all the fun, and Frank was certainly the right man in the right place, for he kept his audience in a roar of laughter from the rise of the curtain to its fall. The "villain," Charles J. Haines, was realistic to the extent of frequent hissing from the gallery.

The cast of characters follows:

John Glenarr, Jr., his grandson, Benedict MacQuarrie, a lawyer and executor of Glenarr estate, Chas. J. Haines, an adventurer, member of Irish bar, Frank Christie, Rev. Dr. Stoddard, of St. Agatha's Chapel, The Sheriff, Geo. Coulthart, Morgan, caretaker of Pickering lodge, Russell Clark, Rates, butler at Glenarr House, Sister Theresa, sister superior at St. Agatha's school for girls, Marion Devereaux, her niece, visiting her, Francis Whitehouse, Gladys Piliva, Armstrong, a scholar at St. Agatha's, Geraldine Russell, "The House of a Thousand Candles" will be repeated every matinee and evening this week.

A feature of the evening's musical program was the selection "Madame Sherry" by Carl Hoeschna by the Opera House orchestra, Louis A. Waller, director. "Madame Sherry" will be one of the musical numbers in the week's program, as the play is soon to be given here.

"THE BATTLE"

Next week's production by the Thompson-Flynn stock company at the Opera House will be a notable one, inasmuch as it will be the first local production of a recent Broadway success, "The Battle." The play was produced by Leiber & Co., with Wilton Lackaye, as the star and in this play Mr. Lackaye, is said to have won the most pronounced success that has been his since he became a star. The play enjoyed a run of six months at the Savoy theatre, New York city, and was afterwards a pronounced hit on the road. In securing this play for presentation by the stock company the management is following out the announced policy of presenting the best line of plays obtainable. Another big production is in preparation to follow "The Battle"—"Adv."

"MADAME SHERRY"

Local playgoers are fortunate not to be compelled to wait a year or longer before they are given a chance to enjoy "Madame Sherry." Usually it requires two seasons for a success of such proportions as this unique French vaudeville to reach here from New York, but in the case of this phenomenal Woods, Frazee and Leder musical success, the local public will have an opportunity to see it Thursday, April 27th, just as it is now being presented to overflowing audiences at the New Amsterdam theatre, New York. One of the two New York companies which have been interchanging performances in New York lately that city a few days ago and will appear in a few of the principal cities as one of the special treats of the year. "Madame Sherry" is without a doubt the most talked-of musical comedy of a generation, and is sure to prove as great here as it did in Paris, Berlin, London, Chicago and New York.—Adv.

"THE THREE TWINS"

An announcement that will meet with enthusiasm is that Jos. M. Gaites' remarkable musical comedy "Three Twins," headed by Clifton Crawford, with the original New York company is to appear here April 29th. Not in years has a comedy been produced that is so genuinely funny and bright as this musical force, and the specialties are in continual collision and nearly every foot bumps pleasure and laughter. The music needs no introduction, as it is heard everywhere, the costumes are gorgeous, and the electrical novelties that are introduced from time to time are extraordinary.—Adv.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

The Donald Meek stock company, with Severin DeDeyn, opened in "Clothes," a society drama in four acts by Avery Hopwood at the Hathaway theatre last evening before a fairly sized and highly appreciative audience and gave an excellent performance despite the fact that it was the first. The cast was as follows:

Richard Durbank, Severin DeDeyn, Arnold West, William Marion, John Craye, Simon Cairns, Horace Walling, Donald Meek, Thomas Smith, Jr.

Harrington Reynolds, J. Patience Augusta Pyles, Ada Allen, Mrs. Walling, Lillian Neiderauer, Mrs. Calhoun, Lillian Stewart, Mrs. Maxwell, Doris Dutton, Olivia Sherwood, Mabelle Estelle, Mabel, Isabelle Balesier, Butler, Tom Hall, Gibbs, a servant, Jack Keller.

"Clothes," as has been previously announced, deals with the passion of women for fine raiment and sets forth to what extremes the dear creatures will sometimes go to acquire luxurious gowns and wearing apparel. The playwright, however, contends that this love of finery is not so much inspired by woman's desire to appear charming before men as to excite the envy of other women. The play abounds in strongly dramatic situations and yet it is replete with good comedy. The play is finely staged and the costumes, well, listen: The writer in his mail this morning found the following from a Lowell lady who is a frequent patron of the theatres of Lowell and Boston and a competent critic. She writes as follows: "The play this week gave me the thought: Miss Estelle has been—since the very first—one of the best dressed women in any stock company here, of the daintiest and best in every particular—and not occasionally, but always. It is a fact commented on by the majority of playgoers. They see and understand—but they do not know that so many of her lovely clothes. It is the word as it is the catch-word of the week, as the work of a local modiste. Lowell really can contribute that daintiness and 'style.'"

Ergo, here goes: Miss Estelle wore two particularly stunning lace evening gowns. One was of Brussels lace over white satin and Dresden gold cloth,

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

A banner show was presented at this house yesterday before two large audiences. McEldan and Carson, an act that is seldom seen outside the largest theatres, have an elaborate scenic skating novelty, "Dances in Toyland." The act embraces fancy skating, clog and pedastal dancing and many dancing tricks on roller skates. Sherman and Rose are a couple of neat singing and talking comedians with a bunch of songs and stories that will please. "The Royal Cook," is a funny comedy sketch played by James Kiernan & Co. It tells of the servant problem. Some very drill comedy is worked up in the sketch. The bill includes the latest biograph pictures entitled "The Broken Cross"—Adv.

THEATRE VOYONS

Today the Theatre Voyons shows a most laughable comedy "The Trading Stamp Mania," a burlesque on the trading stamp craze and the absurd things the enthusiastic wife does in order to fill her books. Her husband suffers in silence, till she buys a coffin for him, just because the undertakers gives double stamps and then there is trouble. "Monsieur," is a charming dramatic story of father love and "By a Woman's Will," is a thrilling Civil war drama, well acted and staged in an exceptional manner. The musical program is excellent and finely rendered.—Adv.

After the conference, the members proceeded to the upper hall, where they executed a rehearsal of the beautiful maneuvers of the serpentine march.

POORLY PAID TEACHERS

The financial commission of Boston, whose business is to keep down expenses, reports in favor of increasing the pay of 2000 elementary teachers in Boston. It appears that no other class of city employees is so poorly paid considering the value of their services. The commission is here suggesting an act of simple justice to a class whose services are not fully appreciated.

START THE SMOOTH PAVING JOBS

It is time the city council was doing something on the matter of street paving. Usually the summer work on street paving begins on April 15, but it will be over a month later before the work can be begun this year. It is a loan authorized it will require at least a week or two to go through the formalities. Then the abutters will require thirty days' notice, so that it will be nearer to June 1 than May 1 when the work of street paving can be started. This delay in getting started will run the work into the cold weather of the fall. We have had examples of this in the past, and it is bad policy, for the work will cost more and not be done so well. Besides there may be delay in getting the paving blocks. The four-inch blocks are not kept in stock by the quarries and no quarry could furnish them as fast as eight men could lay them. A gang of eight could lay 10,000 paving blocks per day, so that once the work starts it will be necessary to have a good supply of blocks on hand. It is needless to say that a rush order is not so well filled as one on which there is no haste. All this should move the city government to get the smooth paving started as soon as possible.

The board of trade a short time ago got out a good plan for paving the principal business streets by doing a reasonable amount each year until 1915. It was as follows:

CENTRAL STREET—Appleton to Elm.

EAST MERRIMACK STREET—Eastern canal to High.

CHURCH STREET—Central to Concord.

DUTTON STREET—Broadway to Fletcher.

THORNDIKE AND FLETCHER STREETS—Middlesex to Dutton.

MERRIMACK STREET—Tilden to Cabot.

FLETCHER STREET—Dutton to Broadway.

MOODY STREET—Merrimack to Tilden.

GORHAM STREET—Appleton to Davis square.

MARKET STREET—Palmer to Dutton.

Were the streets here indicated paved in the same way as Central and Merrimack streets, Lowell would have reason to be proud of the achievement. The cleaner streets would enhance the value of property abutting and would also be beneficial to the public health in offering less lurking places for disease germs.

TO LESSEN THE NUMBER OF MINE HORRORS

Almost before the victims of the New York holocaust were laid away in the grave, news of a great colliery catastrophe comes from Scranton, Pa., where no less than 73 lives were lost in the Pancoast coal mine. The cause of the disaster was fire, but the cause of the fire is yet unexplained. Almost at the same time another mine horror was reported from Banner, Ala., in which 128 lives were lost. In this case the immediate cause of the disaster was an explosion.

The fact that most of the men were convicts will lead some to blame them for the disaster, but convicts are not as a rule willing to commit suicide just to terminate their punishment.

There were no convicts among the victims at Pancoast. There is no reason to believe that the accident in the Banner mine was different from other mine horrors of which we have had far too many of late.

It seems that little or nothing is done to prevent these mine horrors. If the states do not discharge their full duty in compelling mine owners to provide due protection for their employees the federal government might take steps to protect all workers in the mines throughout the country. Down in the dark recesses of these mines the men have to face dangers that would not be tolerated for a day on the surface. But in the mine the inspectors are not very numerous and the lives of the miners seem to be cheaply rated anyhow, not only by the mine owners but by the government officials.

Especially is this so in case of the Alabama convicts. The slavery which these convicts endure when sent into the mines is worse than that which existed in the South before the war. This disaster should result in some action that would put a stop to such cruelty.

Of course there will be an investigation but, like the other investigations of a similar kind, it will result in nothing beyond a finding that a certain number of men in a certain mine lost their lives through a fire or an explosion from some unknown cause. It will not fix responsibility, for that might bring high officials into trouble.

There is very little effort to ascertain the long train of evils and sufferings that these mine disasters entail. The families and dependent relatives of the victims are cast upon a heartless world and after a short time they mingle with the mass of workers, receiving no sympathy on account of the sudden loss of husband or father.

But as to the responsibility there is very little effort to trace it, and so far as useful results are concerned it would be almost as well to have no inquest. If the inquest would search into the causes of accidents and provide against future disasters something would be gained, but there is nothing of this kind.

The following are the usual causes of disasters in mines as well as in factories:

- Faults in construction.
- Long hours of work.
- Too great speed in all lines of work.
- Inadequate inspection.
- Failure to remedy known defects.
- Inadequate warning and signal systems.
- Inadequate instruction and direction of ignorant workers.

To secure reforms along these lines, which apply alike to factory and mine, a special act of the legislature is necessary to compel the management to do its full duty. The safety requirements should be made more definite, more stringent and more capable of enforcement if we are to have any diminution in the number of accidents in mines and factories. This is a matter that requires the careful study and attention of the legislators in nearly every state in the country.

The President's Report

The president's report was as follows:

In presenting his annual report to the association, your president feels constrained to express his sincere appreciation of the faithful support of the board of directors during the past year and for the spirit of harmony that has prevailed in all their deliberations. The work of all the committees composed of members of the board has been most efficient and merits the thanks of the association. The duties of the employed officers: General Secretary Yarnell, Boys' Secretary Williams, Physical Director Scatena and Office Secretary Gumb have been fully performed, and to their efficient work is due much of the success of the past year that has been one of steady growth under somewhat discouraging conditions. During the year the membership has grown from 654 to 711, 57 more than has ever been reported at an annual meeting. This increase is largely due to the efficient work of the membership committee, under the wise leadership of Director Charles P. Jennings. There has also been in marked increase in the various activities of the association as shown by the partial report of the work accomplished, given by the chairman of the sub-committee.

The association has done a valuable work co-operating for community betterment with other organizations. The Boy Scout movement was started with Mr. H. W. Gibson and Lloyd W. B. Wakefield of England, at a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. here. There is a large number of patrols now in this vicinity and the movement is well launched. In physical supervision, the time of our physical director, Mr. Scatena, was given by the board of directors for two weeks last season, and promised for two weeks this season, to start the work right on the different grounds. In the Men and Religion forward movement, the directors and the members of the association stand ready to labor in this movement which is being launched in many big cities. The association is being called upon more and more for extension of its influence and activities outside its building. There are large opportunities for helpful service which should be responded to by those who have at heart the welfare of the community. An employment and vocational bureau should be carefully organized. Better equipment should be secured for the Lowell boys' camp. Careful plans will be made for the opening of the work in the new building.

An enlarged constituency of regular annual contributors toward the current expenses of the association should be secured if the work of the association is to be developed commensurate with the opportunities for service in this large and growing city. Friends of the cause, those who value the development of character by the activities of the association should stand together and co-operate, shaking all personal feelings, prejudices and differences for the good of the boys and young men of the city and vicinity.

Regarding the progress on the new building, we can state that each step is being taken carefully. The foundations are now practically completed, and the laying of the brick walls has begun. Probably three months of time have been saved by the laying of the foundations during the winter, and it is now hoped that the work of construction will proceed rapidly. It should be made strong and the work done well. The interior plans have been examined and approved by many visitors to the association, and when completed, the finished building will give the association an opportunity for much larger service to the community. Then came the educational committee's report.

The educational committee report was as follows: Last season a distinct advance was made over the previous year in educational lines.

The first sessions of the summer school were opened up with Mr. E. E. Harris, principal, with 25 students. Good work was done and the school will be opened again this coming summer.

An electricity class has been taught by Mr. Percy J. Wilson, several supplementary lectures have been given and trips made to electrical plants. A "Get Together" club has been organized. This is practically an educational club, where each Friday evening an address is given and opportunity allowed for general discussion. The attendance has averaged 22 at 25 meetings during the season.

The class in First Aid to the Injured has been taught by Dr. H. H. Sumner. Examinations were held last Friday evening.

The report of the boys' work showed great activity in that line. The Ward club at the Elton church was organized. Boys were sent to three camps, over 40 having been in short time. They did work in all branches, such as baseball, banquets, Bible study, socials, studies, etc., and the result was a great improvement in the character and personality of the boys.

The social committee has been quite busy also. At present rehearsals are taking place every Tuesday night for the minstrel show to be given on May 1. A baseball social was held on April 23 at which Mr. Murnane of Boston addressed the players. The social work committee has backed up the first aid class and the Get Together club and the sale of tickets for the Bryan lecture, the minstrel show and other entertainments and lectures.

Physical Director's Report The remarkable part of the physical director's report is the following statistics in regard to the gym: There were 374 gymnasium classes held, 7117 in regular gymnasium classes; 2480 using floor for special work; 5567 using gym principles; 11,151 baths taken; 50 examinations taken.

The season of 1910-1911 has been one of the most successful seasons in the history of the Lowell Y. M. C. A. It was opened on Monday, Oct. 3, and Miss Hazel Shaffer was hired to furnish music for all the gymnasium classes. Her playing has been one of the most pleasing features of the gym work. Two gymnasium exhibitions were held, one in January and one in March. Over a hundred men participated in both and 500 people attended.

The season considered one of the best basketball season in the state, with a record of losing only one game and that the first and with only three regular men playing. Classes were organized to train policemen and firemen for their civil service examinations and the association men were successful in obtaining high ranks.

The association is in receipt of a letter from H. W. Gibson, secretary of the boys' department, congratulating the Lowell boys on their fine work in raising $100 more than Boston on the Boys' day held recently. The local organization has every reason to be proud of its work.

Religious Work Committee The religious work committee reported that the Bible lecture course given last April was quite successful and that the coming addresses will be delivered on April 12, 19, 26 and May 10th. A number of Bible classes have been formed in the association for boys and one for men in the "Social Teachings of Jesus" taught by Rev. James E. Gregg. The address by Hon. Wm. J. Bryan was under the auspices of the religious work committee. On a little over a week's notice, an audience of over 500 was secured to hear the address entitled "The Prince of Peace." There are many services which should be performed for the benefit of the boys and young men of the community which the committee hopes to undertake under more favorable conditions in the new building.

CELEBRATED CASE

Decision Reversed in Case of the Danbury Hatters

NEW YORK, April 11.—The long-standing controversy between the Danbury hatters and the union known as the United Hatters of North America was brought up again today by a reversal of the judgment for $232,240.12 which D. E. Lowe & Co. of Danbury obtained as damages for the union's alleged boycott of the hat manufacturers' interstate business.

The United States circuit court of appeals took up the case on a writ of error to review the judgment of the circuit court in Connecticut. In an opinion written by Judge Lacombe and concurred in by Judges Cox and Noyes yesterday the judgment is reversed.

The verdict upon which the judgment was originally entered was practically directed by the court, which left to the jury merely the matter of damages, as the "only question with which they could properly concern themselves." The jury assessed the damages at $74,000, which amount, in accordance with the conspiracy provision of the Sherman law, the court trebled.

New Trial Directed
Setting aside the judgment the court of appeals finds the lower court erred in directing the verdict. A new trial was directed. Of the facts conceded by the hatters, which were relied upon in the former decision, Judge Lacombe says in his opinion it has been proved that the United Hatters were in association with the American Federation of Labor; that the Hatters' union undertook to monopolize the factories, and when the manufacturers refused to allow this a union war was declared.

JEWISH EASTER

To be Observed on Wednesday Evening

Wednesday evening Jews all over the world will celebrate the feast of Passover, commonly called in this country the Jewish Easter.

The observance of Passover entails many obligations upon the pious Jews. Attendance at the synagogue service and the prayers said in the family circle are not the only acts of devotion required. The pious Jew is expected to follow many biblical and rabbinical commands even in his preparation for the festival. Many of the most interesting of these ceremonies are observed by the members of the household only in the privacy of their homes.

On the evening preceding the eve of Passover an interesting ceremony is observed by the very pious, which is highly characteristic of the conscientious observance of the strict Hebrew commandments. It is the commandment that there shall not be any bread of "leavened" in the house. Everything leavened must disappear to make way for the unleavened.

The Seder service, however, is more commonly observed. This service is observed at the homes of the pious both the first and second nights of the Passover. It is full of pathetic and historical reminiscences.

The head of the household tells the history of the flight from Egypt and with each portion of the narrative recited object lessons are exhibited. A mixture of fruit, herbs and almonds made into a paste of the consistency of mortar is eaten in the commemoration of the severity of the life in Egypt.

The reason for the eating of the Matzo during the entire observance of the Passover festival, the Matzo being unleavened and nothing leavened is used, is explained to be in commemoration of the hasty departure from Egypt, when there was not sufficient time given for the dough to leaven.

The service of the "Hagadah" occupies a full evening, but it is not alone a religious and serious ceremony. Between the first and second parts a hallowed feast is partaken of, and there are few Jews who have not arranged a feast for this festival. No Jew is ever refused admittance to the household of another, no religious, if unable to provide the festival meal for himself.

AT DAY NURSERY

Work of Association Outlined in Annual Report

At the annual meeting of the Lowell Day Nursery association which was held last Saturday the officers of the association submitted to the members the following report of the work of the Day Nurseries for the year ending April first:

"The year just past has been a comparatively uneventful one. The total attendance, while slightly smaller than that reported for April 1, 1910, is larger than in 1909. 1908 and 1907. The health of the children has been uniformly good and the nurseries, thanks in large measure to the character and intelligence of our two matrons, was never in better condition than at present.

The personnel of the board of officers as at present constituted is as follows: President, Dr. Moses G. Parker; treasurer, J. Gilbert Hill, Esq.; clerk, John Jacob Rogers. Directors, whose terms expire today: Mrs. S. T. Brown, Mrs. J. L. Chaffoux, Miss N. P. H. Robbins, Mrs. Mary A. Plunkett and Mr. Paul Butler. Directors, whose terms expire April 1, 1912: Mrs. Chas. M. Williams, Miss Sarah Dempsey, Col. A. M. Chadwick, Mr. Daniel H. Carroll and Mrs. Arthur D. Prince. Directors, whose terms expire April 1, 1913: Mrs. Julian Talbot, Mrs. Lewis E. MacDwyne, Mrs. Natl. W. Peabody, Mrs. W. P. Lawler and Mrs. Paul Butler.

The total attendance during the past year has been as follows:
At the First Street Nursery.....5034
At the Kirk Street Nursery.....6611

Grand total.....12,645
In 1910 the total was 13,990; in 1909, 12,274; in 1908, 12,582; and in 1907, 12,624. The slight decrease from the figure reached in 1910 is probably mainly, if not wholly, due to the falling away in attendance during the summer months when many of the mills were closed, and the mothers not being at work, were consequently able to take care of their children for themselves.

It has seemed wise to omit for a year at least the traditional Christmas festival which will probably be held about the first of June.

Your officers wish to remind you, and the public generally, that visitors are cordially desired to visit either or both of the homes, and will at any time be warmly welcomed and shown the work which is being done for the children.

We earnestly solicit gifts, not only of money, but of clothing, fruit, provisions and groceries, and toys of all kinds, or any other articles which you would find useful for your own children.

The foregoing report was accepted by the association, and the various members of the board whose terms had expired were unanimously re-elected.

OF NEW YORK

JOHN R. HEGEMAN, President

INSURANCE SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

The New York Insurance Department has had the Company under examination, pursuant to law, for about fifteen months. After this examination the Superintendent of Insurance said:

THOROUGHNESS.—"It is thought that no Company of this character under the supervision of any Insurance Department in the United States has ever been so thoroughly examined by such a Department."

PAYMENT OF CLAIMS.—"The claims received averaged from 600 to 800 each working day; the percentage of rejections is small, being in 1909 less than one-half of one per cent."

CAREFUL INVESTMENTS.—"On an investment of $100,000,000 in real estate mortgages this Company now holds through foreclosure but one piece of realty."

INDUSTRIAL POLICIES AT COST.—"On this basis this Company, from all of its departments, added to its surplus in 1909, after setting aside in that year as a liability its dividends and bonuses for 1910, about $800,000; in other words, the volume of its business being considered, seems to have furnished insurance substantially at cost."

PROGRESSIVE MANAGEMENT.—"The Department Report shows during the last five years:

Reduction in the ratio of expense to premium income... 7.13%
Reduction in the ratio of lapse to issue... 10.36%
Reduction of cancellations in first year of insurance... 8.92%

ORDINARY DEPARTMENT

In 1910 the Company wrote a larger amount of Ordinary business in the United States and Canada than any other company, by TWENTY MILLIONS!

In 1910 the Company placed Ordinary Insurance up to the Limit of the Law and was obliged to hold back hundreds of thousands of dollars of insurance by reason of the New York statute limiting amount in any one year.

MORAL: Get in early this year and avoid the rush at the end. Best plans; cheapest rates; all policies non-participating—that is, the money is not collected on promise of repayment in dividends, but is left in the pockets of the insured by reduction of premium.

INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT

OLD POLICIES.—A bonus has been declared to Industrial policy-holders amounting to nearly

SIX MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

payable in 1911 on Whole Life and Increasing Life and Endowment policies issued prior to 1907, which bonuses give reduction of premiums varying, according to period of persistence, from

EIGHT TO ONE HUNDRED PER CENT.

The Company added not one dollar to surplus at the end of 1910 out of income from Industrial policies.

NEW POLICIES.—The benefits on policies issued since January 1, 1907, are over

TWENTY PER CENT. GREATER

than the benefits promised by policies issued previously.

In the last eighteen years it has declared

WELFARE WORK FOR POLICY-HOLDERS

Extracts from the Report of the Superintendent of Insurance of the State of New York.

"No summary of this examination of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company would be complete which omitted reference to certain agencies for social service which it has inaugurated and is now conducting."

"CAMPAIGN AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS.—Among the activities of this Company begun since the Armstrong investigation is its participation in the nation-wide crusade against tuberculosis. As to policy-holders, its work has thus far been confined to the dissemination of the literature of prevention and instruction; a work which its great Agency force and close contact with the industrial classes makes easy, as well as effective. As a matter of mere business economics, the Company's activities in this direction entitle it to the approval of the Department."

"NURSING SYSTEM.—About two years ago this Company inaugurated a system whereby trained nurses would, upon request, be sent to the homes of sick or bedridden policy-holders in its Industrial Department. While this service has been but recently established, and while, therefore, the examiners are in some doubt as to its ultimate effectiveness either from the standpoint of saving the lives of policy-holders or minimizing unhealthy conditions, no one can make a personal investigation into what has already been done without being profoundly impressed with, not only the economic, but, more, the beneficent value of the work. Numerous cases where lives have been saved are already on record. Many instances showing improvement in home conditions due to the visits of the nurses are known."

For Manslaughter in Killing Billy Dunning

HOULTON, Me., April 11.—Jack Leen, the boxer, was indicted on charges of manslaughter and in engaging in an illegal fight by the grand jury which reported to the supreme court today. Leen arrived here last night and is in readiness for his trial which will be held soon.

HUB DOG SHOW

Opened Today With 850 Canines

BOSTON, April 11.—Pet canines outnumbered all other classes at the annual exhibition of the New England Kennel club which opened in Mechanics hall today with 850 dogs ready for the benches. Boston terriers to the number of 150 were brought in by their owners, followed by 57 French bull dogs and 56 spaniels. The event of greatest interest was the 1500-an-entry sweepstakes for Russian wolf hounds. The entire stake goes to the exhibitor winning the greatest number of points in regular, open, team and brace classes. Sixteen Russian wolf hounds are on exhibition.

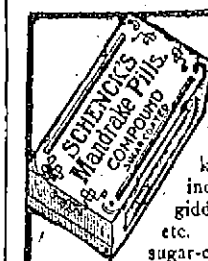

PROTEST ENTERED

By the Republican City Committee

At a meeting of the republican city committee held last night it was voted to make formal protest to the mayor against the retention of three democrats on the board of registrars of voters. The mayor, however, has not yet received the formal protest. The law requires that the board of registrars shall be evenly balanced, politically at least. The law calls for two republicans and two democrats. The city clerk is a member of the board and the election of Mr. Flynn to that office puts three men on the democratic end of the board. Just for that one of them will have to get off, and as John P. Farley is the short term member he will be the one to go.

WINAN'S STEAM GUN

The Sun Solves Mystery of Its Disappearance

"Ted" Meloy Converted It Into Junk at H. R. Barker's Yard Many, Many Years Ago—Gun Has Quite a History

The mystery surrounding the whereabouts of the noted Winan's steam gun, referred to in Saturday's and yesterday's issues of The Sun, has been solved.

It was thought by many veterans of the war and older residents of this city that the alleged death dealing piece of ordnance could be located. It would be very appropriate to exhibit the gun in Memorial hall during the observance of the 50th anniversary of the march through Baltimore.

The freak invention, however, is now a thing of the past for sometime during the late sixties or early seventies the gun was demolished at the H. R. Barker Co.'s plant in Middle street and Edward Meloy, assistant engineer of the local fire department, was the man who reduced the gun to scrap iron with his little hammer.

The Winan steam gun was in many ways a forerunner of the modern Gatling gun but was a very crude affair. It was made of cast iron, was shrouded into a large hopper, which tapered down to a groove. This groove allowed the balls to slip down into cup-like attachments which were revolved at enormous speed. The cups threw the balls forward. Every part of the machinery was protected by sheet iron or steel and an armor shield was provided for the operator of the weapon. The gun was propelled by steam. Everything depended of course on the careful and accurate adjustment of the various parts.

Ross Winan, of Baltimore, a very rich man, whose sympathy was with the south, was the inventor of the gun and he anticipated that his steam gun would revolutionize warfare, but the gun was never used in a battle, for Gen. Butler captured the cumbersome affair outside of Baltimore, and when the Sixth regiment returned to Lowell, the regiment was allowed to bring the gun with it as a trophy of the war.

Recently the newspapers publishing reminiscences of the war, the question of the whereabouts of the gun was brought up, and today The Sun is able to be the first to publish the information that the gun after being brought to this city was exhibited on the fair grounds at several fairs, later was stored in a store house of the Merrimack Mfg. Co. and still later was turned over to the H. R. Barker company where it was broken up.

A Boston paper this morning contained a very vivid account of the gun and its wonderful powers, but when a representative of The Sun interviewed several people who had seen the gun they simply laughed at the story and said that the greater part of it was made out of "whole cloth."

Old Resident Remembers Gun

Mr. Clark M. Langley, one of Lowell's oldest residents and a man who knows a great deal of Lowell's history and affairs in general, in response to The Sun's request for information relative to the whereabouts of the gun, sent in the following self-explanatory letter:

"Editor of the Sun:

very simple but ingenious contrivance to the rapidly revolving barrel. The hood, or shield, was sleeted and the gun mechanism was so constructed that shot could be fired through this slot at any angle desired.

"It was said that a Lowell man by the name of Dickinson, a dancing master, and something to do with his construction. I wish with the veterans that it had been kept; it was worthy of it, and what a relic that would be to exhibit on the 19th.

"Yours truly,
"C. M. Langley."

Was a Toy Gun

Hiram S. Gardner, ladderman on Hook and Ladder No. 2, of the local fire department, remembers the old steam gun and referred to it as a toy gun. Mr. Gardner was a boy at the time the gun was brought to Lowell but he remembers very well the freak machine. He stated to a representative of The Sun that when it was brought to this city it attracted considerable attention, but was a cumbersome affair and if used in war it would be necessary to attach two or four horses to the affair to haul it over the roads. He said that the balls used in the gun were about the size of a large marble and were fed into the barrel through a hopper, but that there was not sufficient force to propel the balls any distance and that a person standing a short distance away from the alleged terrible weapon of death, would have little or no difficulty in catching them in his hand.

Mr. Gardner was very well acquainted with Luther Ladd, one of the first men to fall in the Civil war. Ladd was about eight years Mr. Gardner's senior and at the time the war broke out he was employed at the Lowell Machine shop. Mr. Gardner became acquainted with Ladd about a year before the war. Ladd went to his house on the Machine shop corporation to board and for a long time the two roomed together. Ladd joined one of the military organizations prior to the war as many other young men did, more for the honor of being a soldier during time of peace than in anticipation of war breaking out, and he began to realize the seriousness of his position when war was declared, but Mr. Gardner said that Ladd was a courageous young man and would not back out and went with the troops when they started for the front, but he never had a chance to show his worth in a real battle, for he was one of the first to fall when the Sixth regiment was mobbed in Baltimore.

Gun Inspected by Many

Some time after the gun was brought to this city it was taken to the storehouse of the Merrimack Mfg. Co. at the foot of Kirk street and remained there for several years and was inspected by many people. Later it was turned over to the H. R. Barker Co. where it was stripped of its good parts and then broken into junk by Assistant Engineer Meloy.

GIVES UP FORTUNE

Mrs. Elkins Is About to Wed Again

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—Mrs. Kate Fenton Elkins, widow of William L. Elkins, Jr., son of the traction magnate, will relinquish her right to a third interest in $1,250,000 left by Mr. Elkins and all his personal property, amounting in all to more than half a million dollars, to marry the man of her choice. He is William Delaware Nelson, a lawyer and clubman of Philadelphia, and their engagement was announced yesterday.

This will not leave the future Mrs. Nelson poor, however, as she is wealthy in her own right, being a daughter of former U. S. Senator Chas. M. Felton, of California, who was a "Forty-mer."

The will of Mr. Elkins provided that should his widow marry again her share of the estate should be divided between their two children, Felton B. and Marie Louise Elkins.

Since the death of her husband nine years ago Mrs. Elkins has spent most of her time in California and abroad with her father. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. Nelson is a member of the law firm of Nelson & Woodruff and is president of the Elmore & Williamsport railroad. He belongs to the City Club of New York.

PUBLIC TO DECIDE

If Races Will be Held in Lowell

The prospects of automobile races being held over the Merrimack Valley race course this fall are good. The active members of the Lowell Automobile club, backed up by the assurance of a big entry list by the National Motor Contest circuit and the fact that there will be no hitch over the closing of the roads, are ready to go ahead and give the people of Lowell, as well as thousands of people interested in automobile racing, one of the best races ever held in the east. If the people of Lowell want a race they can have it, if they do not want one, there will be no race.

The Lowell Automobile club is anxious to learn what the people think about the holding of a race and would like to have citizens express their opinions through the columns of the press. If a race is to be held it is time that the club should start to formulate plans in order to make the affair a success.

In conversation with one of the active members of the Lowell Automobile club and a person who assisted in making the races of 1908 and 1909 the successful editor of The Sun learned that the club was ready and willing to devote time and labor in the preparation of plans for a monster race if the people were anxious that one be held this year.

The gentleman in question had the following to say: "We are simply waiting to learn the wishes of the public. If there is a public demand, which there seems to be at the present time, we will hold a race. There will be no difficulty about the securing of a sanction for the A. A. A. has offered Lowell the preference.

"If a race is held in Lowell this fall we will not go to the big expense that we did the year before last. In all probability there will be no grandstand, and unless it is compulsory we will not construct a permanent bridge across the river from the Middlesex village side. The course will be well patrolled and everything possible will be done for the safeguard of the spectators and drivers of the racing cars.

In the event of a race, we will not have to wait about getting all of the big drivers here under the provisions of the recently formed National Motor Contest circuit, that body guarantees to furnish the cream of the racing men in all contests run on the circuit, and Lowell will be on the circuit.

There is a tremendous interest in the race outside of Lowell and we have received numerous inquiries from people throughout New England, who are anxious to know whether there will be a race or not.

"I, for one, do not want to go through a siege of criticism like we did the year before last, after a few of us had given five months time and received nothing in return but unjust criticism."

Pres. John O. Heinze of the Lowell Automobile club, who has been in Detroit during the greater part of the winter, is expected home this week and when he arrives, it can be ascertained whether or not races will be held this fall.

National Motor Contest Circuit

The National circuit of automobile racing is an accomplished fact. Recently papers were filed in Albany incorporating the National Motor Contest circuit, the formal designation of what is already popularly known as the "National Circuit," and such men as Howard Marmon, Robert P. Hooper, S. M. Butler and A. R. Partridge are among the incorporators. The various fields from which these men are drawn are significant of the intention of the new association. The company has its existence solely for the benefit and advantage of the manufacturers who take part in racing and for the great public which is interested in the continuance of clean and high-class sport.

The incorporation, which was done in order to centralize responsibility, is one of the last of the steps that must be taken before the actual racing season opens. Practically every other day

VETERAN DRIVER

Lytle Entered In International Race

Gathering in one by one the world's premier motor racing pilots, the 500-mile International sweepstakes race at the Indianapolis motor speedway Memorial Day has assumed greater proportions than any other race in the history of automobile contests. There is but one great driver left on American soil who is not nominated to drive a car in this long classic—"Wild Bob" Burman, the successor of Barney Oldfield. Burman will be in the race—his word has been given.

This wonderful condition is made possible by the entry of Herb Lytle, the steady of them all, dean of American drivers in an American Jack Rabbit. The entry was made by Lytle himself as owner, and the association of his name with the veteran racing car from Kokomo makes the roster of the great race look natural to the older fans of the motor racing sport.

Along with the entry of Lytle came the entry of an American from Chicago, J. F. Gelhaw and W. H. Pearce were nominated as wheelmen for these two. They are the 1910 team drivers for the Fiat. The former won the classic Coca Cola trophy at Atlanta last November and the latter was the winner of the G. & J. Trophy race at the Indianapolis brick track last July. They had great success with the Fiat cars in the past year and are looking forward to the winning of new laurels during 1911.

The driving history of veteran Herb Lytle reads like an interesting account of the greatest events in the annals of the motor. The story of his career starts way back in 1895, when he participated in the Cosmopolitan race in New York city and later, in 1908, went to Europe in the London to Brighton race. Five of the great Vanderbilt Cup races have seen Lytle in the running and he has performed notably in most of them. The Apperson is Lytle's old love and his coming back to it is one of the notable features of the season.

In making his entry, Herb said: "I've gone back to the car which I had the greatest success with, and I'm going to use parts of the old car in making this new one. I shall take the stock motor, which is as fast as they are built anywhere, and use parts of the old chassis which made the other Apperson Jack Rabbit famous. I know now that the car will travel better than 100 miles an hour without trouble, and believe that I have taken the best mount I could have for the race.

While I was in Europe I had the offer of four or five of the best foreign cars, but I think that the American cars can outrun the machines sent from the other side, so I'll take the Apperson this time."

Lytle will have his car ready for tuning within a few weeks. The motor which he will use is the same as the one which made the fastest lap in the Lowell road race of 1909 and he turned off a mile on the road in 44.5. It has five and one-half inches stroke and five and three-quarters inches bore, with a piston displacement of 571, being rated at fifty-horse power.

The total list of entries for the race got stand at thirty-five, by far the largest number of cars for entries in any race and the Speedway management is confident that eight or ten more will be named before the entries close on May 1.

At Request of Law and Order League Which Brought Petition for the Hearing—Commissioners on Tour of Inspection

The hearing which was to be given tonight by the board of police to the Law and Order league and the federation of churches, has been postponed till Tuesday April 18, at which time the board will hold a regular meeting, at the request of those interested.

The Law and Order league and the Federation of Churches have objected to the granting of two licenses, a first and a fourth to one applicant. They also asked that no liquor license of any description or denomination be granted to anybody in the Greek colony in Market street and that the petition for a license at the corner of Bridge and Paige streets be denied.

COBURN'S DRAHNAP AUTO OIL

From resting his brow on the tank, with the constant vibration the skin was worn off right down to the bone. He was in suffering for about 150 miles, but he never complained. I wouldn't have had a chance to finish the race without him. When we were alone in the National, had to curl up behind the steering wheel and rest his head on his arm in order to make the trip. Burman in the Benz found he couldn't get hold of his change speed levers because he couldn't thrust his hand against the wind to the lever.

The sun was peeling up so that my three sets of goggles were baked as if it had been made of ground glass. And the leather mask was all pitted, the glaze worn off, and on one cheek the leather was almost worn through. If that sand had begun to eat my face it would have made short work of the skin.

The ride in the sand made the car take a leap occasionally that sent it away off into the air and it made me a little doubtful just what would happen when we landed. It was a great strain on the car and on the crew. That is what automobile racing is nowadays. It is a test of the driver's endurance more than of the car's.

"Incidentally, That will be easy compared with Jacksonville. I am flustered to drive the 100 miles without a relief. At Indianapolis I believe the race will be won in the last 100 miles. If a man drives in that race at a speed greater than the limit of the track he will lose time enough in changing tires to bring his average down."

So I think the best way, which is the safest, is to run inside the track's limit and eventually make better by not having so much tire trouble. Seventy-five miles an hour average will take that race and that's the way I expect to drive. I think the results at Jacksonville make us look a lot better for Indianapolis."

THE $60,000 PUMP

Milwaukee

The greater portion of Lowell's $60,000 pump is on the way and is expected to arrive within a day or two. The water board has received notice that the water end of the pump and other pieces making four carloads in all were shipped from Milwaukee, April 4 and the steam end will come later.

Ellery I. Harris, constructing engineer for the makers of the pump, the Allis-Chalmers company, is on the ground with a gang of men and is anxiously awaiting the arrival of the pump. Mr. Harris and his men came here from Kansas City where they installed a pump having a capacity of 20,000,000 gallons a day. Lowell's new pump will have a capacity of 5,000,000 gallons a day and will be installed in the West Centralville pumping station.

The Allis-Chalmers company has until May 14 to install the pump according to contract and if the company fails to have the pump installed and in running order by that time it will have to pay a fine of $25 a day for as many days as the terms of contract have been overrun.

The usual spring building boom is opening up in fine shape.

PRES. TAFT WILL OPEN SEASON

WASHINGTON, April 11.—President Taft will open the baseball season tomorrow by tossing the ball from his box in the new American league grandstand here in the Boston and Washington game. Quackenbush was recently dropped from the government service and his friends claimed that it was because of his activity against President Walton. The restraining order was issued by Judge Dodge in the United States circuit court.

Popularity of the Medium Priced Car is Evident—Several New Makes of Cars Make Their Appearance in Lowell—Agents Satisfied With Present Business and See Prospects of Better Business in the Future—Operators of the Auto Fire Patrol Are Now Licensed Chauffeurs

All the kind words there are just about come up to describing the way motorists in general and dealers in particular felt about the weather that dawned forth yesterday, following Sunday's snow storm. Weather, be it known, is a powerful element in the motor world. If it rains or snows, is gloomy and cold, folks do not want to go out riding for pleasure. If they have closed cars, completing the winter's service, they are not going to be in any rush to change these for open cars. They do not want to go out for demonstrations of course, and they distrust the automobile projects from their minds for a little while anyway.

But when a morning dawns like yesterday, it makes a big difference. It reminds the enthusiast that the auto season is on and the demonstrators and salesmen are kept busy.

Despite the fact that the weather of a couple of days last week was not of the kind that would enthrall a person with thoughts of automobile, the local dealers did a brisk business and foresee many good prospects. In several of the local garages there are a number of new cars which have been sold for future delivery, for the enthusiast who takes pride in keeping his car neat and clean and in good running order, is willing to leave it in the garage until the snow has disappeared and the roads have dried up.

John Rinkelat, Martin C. Rowell, John P. Ambrose and Harold L. Foster, of the protective company, are now licensed chauffeurs, each having received a chauffeur's license from the Massachusetts State Highway commission. According to the law, it is not necessary for the operators of automobiles belonging to the fire or police department to take an examination in order to operate an automobile through the streets.

Harry B. Sanders, driver of Chief Hosmer's automobile, and Charles F. Blackpole and Alfred F. Prescott, who operate the car when Mr. Sanders is at his meals or has leave of absence, are also to take an examination in order to qualify as licensed chauffeurs.

Mr. Edward E. Sawyer of the Union National bank has received a permit, from the inspector of lands and buildings to erect a garage for his new Hudson car, in the rear of his home at 21 Chester street. The building will cost about $400.

This month's issue of Motor contains an excellent list one cut of the Lowell police patrol, built by the E. R. Thomas Motor Co.

One of the classiest automobiles sold in this vicinity this season is the 60 horse power, four door, five passenger Stoddard-Dayton delivered to Elmer B. Cole of Billerica by Frank S. Bean of this city. The body of the car is dark blue with nickel trimmings.

William E. Potter, the real estate dealer, attracts considerable attention as he drives through the streets with his new 40 horse power Stoddard-Dayton.

Frank S. Bean has delivered a 50 horse power Stoddard-Dayton to Mrs. E. B. Pierce of Belmont street. It is a model 11A, four door touring car and is finished in dark blue.

Harold Selfridge of the Lowell Textile Co. has purchased a Reading 40 runabout from Paul R. Chandler, the local agent for that car. The machine is built very low, equipped with a bucket dash, large gasoline and oil tanks in the rear and has a racy appearance.

Every year finds an influx of new makes of cars in this city and this year among the cars that have not been sold in this city heretofore are the Cole 30, Case, Reading 40 and Cutting. The Cutting is the latest arrival and Paul R. Chandler of Third street has taken the agency. During the past week he has been giving demonstrations in the runabout and touring car which he has on hand. The machines are built along neat lines and the style of the body and finish are in keeping with the power of the engine.

Frank D. Donovan, agent for the Inter-State, had several demonstrations of cars from Boston in Lowell last week, and those who were given the opportunity to enjoy a ride in one of the cars claim that it has many of the great features of cars costing twice as much. Mr. Donovan states that he has several good prospects on hand.

George F. White of North Chelmsford delivered a Model H. Reo delivery wagon to the Adams Hardware Co. in Middlesex street last week. The machine has a capacity of 1500 pounds.

M. S. Feindel of Davis square reports a brisk season. The number of 1911 models of Ford and Overland cars on the streets of the city this year is evidence that he has little reason to complain of poor business.

S. Howard Chase of Eighteenth st. has purchased a Model H. Reo four power four-passenger car through the agency of Mackenzie & Bryant. It is a four passenger car and the body is finished in dark blue with cream colored running gear. In order to properly house his car Mr. Chase had his auto shed enlarged.

Roy P. Lovejoy, agent of the Lexington car, is in New Orleans on a business trip. It is expected that he will remain in the south for two or three weeks.

Saturday, Mackenzie and Bryant delivered a model Q, 22 horse power four passenger, four door Maxwell to Harry M. Sawyer of 16 Cambridge place. The body of the car is finished in light blue and presents a very neat appearance.

George R. Myers has equipped his Model G. A. Maxwell roadster with a top and windshield in order that he may enjoy his automobile in both cold and stormy as well as pleasant weather.

The snow storm of Sunday prevented many motorists from enjoying the day on the road.

That the members of the gentler sex have mastered the intricacies connected with the operation and care of the automobile is evident by the number of young ladies seen on the streets of Lowell every day. While many of the young ladies are capable of operating cars and making minor adjustments and repairs there are others who know the engine from "A to Z" and are equal to any emergency that may arise on the road.

The Motor Racing Drivers' Association of America, composed of professional racing pilots, was formed a few days ago in New York. George Robertson, who drove the Simplex to victory in the 1909 race over the Merrimack Valley course, was chosen president. Ralph De Palma, who steered the Fiat in the membership committee, Charles Basile, the pilot of the Renault is a member of the special committee of out-of-town representatives and Joe Matson, head of Chalmers fame, is on the eligibility and protests committee. Fred Wagner, official A. A. A. starter, was elected an honorary member.

The smooth running and noiseless electric vehicle is becoming very popular in Lowell, there being about a score of that style of automobile in the city at the present time. One of the first of these cars, an electric vehicle was sold to William S. Southworth of the Massachusetts mills. Mr. Southworth has had several electric "cars" and uses his latest model daily in going back and forth between his home and the mill.

Dan O'Day, E. D., (expert demonstrator) of the Lowell Automobile corporation, is kept busy these days giving demonstrations in the Oldsmobile and Buicks and teaching new devotees of the game how to operate and take care of their machines.

George R. Dana, of the East Merrimack street garage, went to Chicopee Falls yesterday and returned to Lowell this afternoon with a handsome six cylinder four door five passenger Stevens-Duryea, for which he has a prospective purchaser. During the latter part of the week he will receive four more Stevens-Duryeas, three five passenger cars and the other a seven passenger touring car.

The Hudson and Chalmers, for which Mr. Dana is also agent, are attracting the attention of prospective owners of automobiles and it is expected that within a few weeks a number of these cars will be seen on the street. The Hudson has proved to be a very popular car and Mr. Dana has sold a number this season.

When the automobile editor of The Sun called at the Merrimack Valley garage in Moody street yesterday afternoon, he found the repairmen busy at work on machines and considerable work on the floor which had not been touched. The management of this garage stated that business has been very good this season and he has no reason to complain. Despite the fact that the repair work has kept the mechanics busy, the management of the garage devotes a portion of his time demonstrating the good qualities of the machines to prospective customers.

William F. Foye, of the Park hotel, is getting to be an expert operator of an automobile and handles his red Buick like an old time driver.

It is evident that the Oakland, the agency of which is at the Moody Bridge garage, is a very popular car, for many of that make have been sold in Lowell and vicinity this season. Yesterday three Oakland arrived in Lowell. One was a big touring car, while the other two were runabouts.

Comes who are anxious to be married in style are making bookings with Edmund H. Mercier for the use of his handsome limousine for the occasion and he has a big list of parties who have engaged him for the Easter weddings. These who desire his service should make their bookings at once, for with him it is "first come, first served." As usual he is making a specialty of local and out of town trips, and those who have gone on a trip in one of his machines are anxious to make others. His latest acquisition consists of three of the newest and best machines in the city. You can have the choice of the big limousine, seven passenger touring car or five passenger touring car.

Mr. Mercier is to add to his equipment within a few weeks and it is understood that the new machine which he has purchased will be one of the classiest self-propelled cars in this part of the country. All that "Ed" will

Mr. John J. Hogan has accepted a position as traveling salesman for the Pitts Auto Supply Co. in Hurd street. This firm intends to do a jobbing business, and Mr. Hogan will cover all of the territory north of Lowell. Mr. Hogan reports the following sales of Ajax tires for the week: Helme Electric company, four; Lowell Gas Light company, for Buick trucks, three; Dr. E. H. Pecker, three; Samuel Scott, two; Byam Bros., two; The Joyce Co., one; Mr. E. Pelletier, one.

Dr. Frank G. Gulliland has bought a model 26 Buick roadster and within a few weeks he will be seen gliding through the streets in his new machine. The car will be delivered through the Lowell Automobile corporation.

Leonard H. Spaulding, treasurer of the L. H. Spaulding Co., shoe manufacturers of this city, made a speedy run from Woods-Hole to this city yesterday morning in his big Packard touring car. This is considered a rather long trip for this time of the year, but Mr. Spaulding found the roads very good.

Arthur J. Cumiskey, the hustling salesman of L. S. Moody Bridge garage, went to Lawrence yesterday and closed a contract for a model 33 Oakland touring car with Timothy J. Dooling, grocer and provision dealer, of 3 Newton street.

Salesman Thomas B. Huxwick and Aljo Hale of the Lowell Automobile Corp., report several sales of Buick cars this week, with many good prospects for future deliveries of Oldsmobiles and Buicks. The popularity of the Buick is evident inasmuch as many people who operated other makes of cars last year are selling their 1910 machines and purchasing the latest models of the Buick. A big seven-passenger Oldsmobile with artillery wheels was sold during the week but will not be delivered until the first of the month.

IN POLICE COURT

Short Docket Quickly
Disposed of Today

The police court session was very brief this morning, for in all six cases were brought before Judge Hadley, three of drunkenness, one of non-support, one of larceny, and the other that of a stubborn child.

Edgar Cameron, charged with the larceny of clothing and different other articles from Helge Lagergren, entered a plea of not guilty. The testimony revealed the fact that Lagergren was employed by Frank Ladd, and that he was the middle of March and April 7, he was away. While the latter was gone, Cameron was hired in to take his place. Lagergren's trunk remained in the stable, and it was claimed that Cameron broke open the trunk and helped himself with its contents. Of the stolen goods a pair of shoes and a stick pin were recovered.

The court found the defendant guilty and deferred the sentence till tomorrow. Cameron being held in the sum of $500.

Delinquent Child

Josephine Sullivan was arraigned before the court this morning to answer a complaint charging her with being a delinquent child. She entered a plea of not guilty but after her father and Miss Sullivan had testified, the defendant was found guilty and ordered to the Home of the Good Shepherd in Boston. When the sentence was imposed, Josephine took a fit of hysterics and was carried down stairs.

Neglect of Wife
Armand Lagombe pleaded guilty of failing to provide proper support for his wife and he was placed in the care of the probation officer.

Drunkenness

Thomas Shea, who when charged with being drunk yesterday, entered a plea of not guilty, and whose case was continued till today, was tried and found guilty this morning, and ordered to the state farm. The defendant when arraigned in court had both eyes blackened and wore several scratches about his face. Police Officers Markham, Lane and Winters and a Mr. Barnes testified that Shea was staggering and fighting drunk when arrested. Henry Dussault admitted being drunk and was given a suspended sentence of 2 months in jail. Philip Dronin also for drunkenness was ordered to the common jail for a term of 6 months.

HAVERHILL'S MAYOR

New City Charter Results in a Romance—Mayor Divorced After 26 Years of Married Life

HAVERHILL, April 11.—Freed from his first wife, with whom he lived 26 years, by a decree of divorce which became absolute only about a month ago, Mayor Edward H. Moulton of this city yesterday sprang a surprise on his friends by announcing his approaching marriage to Miss Anna Belle Hubbard, who was, until a week ago, the assistant city clerk.

In a way commission form of government, which Haverhill was the first city in Massachusetts to adopt, was responsible for the romance, for under it, Mayor Moulton is required to visit the office of the city clerk several times a day. And inevitably he transacted a great deal of his business with Miss Hubbard, and the inevitable happened.

Divorce Uncontested

The matrimonial difficulties which ended in Mayor Moulton's divorcing his wife were the result of a rather singular misfortune. He and his first wife had lived together very happily for 26 years, when she began to show signs of mental breakdown. These developed until, while one of their two children lay ill with diphtheria, she ran away from home.

Afterward she was discovered in Boston. Mayor Moulton did all in his power to bring her back home. She refused. At the divorce proceedings it was brought out that while in Boston she lived with a Haverhill spiritualist, who seemed to have unusual power over her.

It is said she is now in an insane asylum.

SEC'Y OF STATE OLIN ILL

BOSTON, April 11.—The condition of Secretary of State Olin, who is ill with pneumonia, was announced today to be critical. A severe cold, which his family believe that he contracted at the recent Grand Army encampment, developed Sunday into pneumonia and today his physicians are anxious for his recovery.

Mr. Olin was formerly a newspaper writer in the press gallery at the state house and has been a member of the G. A. R. since its organization.

NEW TRIAL FOR HYDE

Evidence Attacked Before the Supreme Court of the State and Hyde Had Been Sentenced to Life Imprisonment

KANSAS CITY, April 11.—Dr. Clark Hyde, convicted after a sensational trial of the murder of Col. Thomas Swope, a millionaire philanthropist, was today granted a new trial by the Missouri supreme court. Mr. Hyde has been in the county jail at Kansas City nearly a year following a sentence to life imprisonment.

The Missouri supreme court's decision today was on an appeal of Hyde's attorney for a new trial. He was sentenced July 5, 1910, to life imprisonment. September 23, 1910, his attorneys asked the highest court in the state for a new hearing, charging error in 255 points.

The chief evidence attacked was that of the Chicago and Michigan toxicologists who examined the viscera of the dead Swope. Dr. Hyde was found guilty of murder May 16, 1910. His inability properly to explain the purchase of capsules of potassium cyanide was chiefly responsible for his conviction. The first of a series of deaths in the Swope family was the death of James Moss Hutton on Oct. 1, 1909. The prosecution charged that Hyde purposely bled the patient beyond the limit of recovery.

Two days later Col. Swope was stricken with convulsions and died. Witnesses testified that a few minutes before the convulsion Dr. Hyde had given Col. Swope a capsule similar to the cyanide capsules it was shown he had bought. The colonel's will, leaving $1,500,000 to relatives, was filed and then Miss Margaret Swope, a niece of Col. Swope, became

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 11.—One of the most interesting stunts in the "war game" was that in which Aviator Rene Simon, his Bleriot monoplane and some men and guns of the Third United States artillery took part. Simon soared and circled above the guns in his aeroplane, with the artillery going at full tilt. The aviator chased the guns three miles. Suddenly the artillery halted, and the order to fire was given. Blanks were fired at the aeroplane, causing such a disturbance of the air currents that Simon found it difficult to keep his machine from upsetting. He kept control, however, and shot upward. The aviator, flying immediately above the artillery detachment, dropped nine explosive bombs filled with chalk. Each bomb hit a gun. The air was so full of chalk that the artillerymen, coughing and almost strangling, had to abandon their guns and run for fresh air. Thus the victory in this first sham battle between aeroplane and artillery was won by the man up in the air. Army officers acted as umpires.

EDDY WILL CASE

First Move Made at Concord, N. H., Yesterday

CONCORD, N. H., April 11.—The first definite move in the Eddy will contest before the superior court was made late yesterday afternoon when Dewitt C. Howe, of counsel for the plaintiff, and General Frank Streeter, of counsel for the executor of the will, asked Chief Justice Wallace for a conference for the purpose of fixing a date for argument on the motion filed by the defence for an injunction restraining the plaintiff from proceeding further with the suit. It being suggested by the counsel for the plaintiff that further amendments to their bill were desired to be made, Chief Justice Wallace made an order for the filing of the amendments by April 17 and the replication April 20. Counsel for the defense notified the court that they did not care to make further answer and with the filing of the replication by plaintiff the pleadings will be completed, the issues joined and the case in order for hearing.

By reason of the further contemplated amendments the matter of an injunction was not pressed and the court made no order for a hearing in this branch of the case.

POSTAL CLERK

GAVE HIMSELF UP TO FEDERAL AUTHORITIES

CHICAGO, April 11.—J. J. Daley, head of the wholesale stamp department of the Chicago postoffice, who stands accused of taking $8500 in government funds, walked into the federal building last night and gave himself up. He was locked up in the county jail. A week ago he disappeared just before the finding of the shortage in his department. Daley protested his innocence. "I don't even know why I left town," he said. "I had heard rumors of a shortage in my department and knew that inspectors were checking up on all the accounts. I simply left town without knowing why or reasoning what the result would be."

BANDITS RAID TOWN

Great Havoc in Plantations in Yucatan and Campeche—Big Planter Killed

EL PASO, Texas, April 11.—Advisers from Guadalupe state that bandits from the territory of Tepic have raided Pales Verdes, a small town in the Mascota district of Jalisco, killing the local judge, Jose E. Montes de Oca, and ten other residents. The bandits are said to have secured money and extensive supplies of corn and beans. A detachment of state gendarmes have been sent in pursuit of the bandits who are supposed still to be in the Mascota district. Specialists of Guadalupe from Merida, the capital of Yucatan, tell of insurrecto activity in the southern states of Campeche and Yucatan. Plantations are being raided, it is declared, and a number of Jeniquin plants have been burned. The aggregate loss is said to be heavy. Among the plantations to suffer loss is that of Olgario Molina, a former member of the Diaz cabinet. The managers of Mann, the minority leader, was ready with his minority list of committee appointments for which the house had been waiting to complete its organization. The republican selections for the important committees were awaited with interest and, in view of the announcement yesterday by Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee that the house would be ready to proceed with the election of committees as soon as the minority list was completed, it was predicted that little time would be wasted in rallying the committees as proposed by the majority committee on committees and leader Mann.

WOMEN DROWNED Sun Classified Ads. Work While You Sleep

Twenty Lost in Wreck of the Steamer Iroquois

VICTORIA, B. C., April 11.—Nearly every woman on board the wooden steamer Iroquois which foundered yesterday, near Sydney, Vancouver Island, was drowned.

Penned in the deckhouse of the boat, five or six women struggled while the sea broke in. They were beating against the glass of the saloon windows when the survivors clambered out to struggle up the side of the deck. Harry Hartnell, brother of the drowned steward, was seen adrift on a door and was rescued by Indians. At Coal Island, the sea cast up the body of Miss Isabel Fenwick. She had no life preserver, and had tried to reach shore on a mattress to which her hand still clung.

Harry Moss, a passenger, lay on the wreck of the house with Mate Isbister, John Bennett and an unknown passenger, drifting about for two hours. The sea washed the broken deckhouse against Mary Island and Mate Isbister jumped ashore with a rope and pulled Bennett and Moss ashore. They threw the rope to the fourth man, who was clinging and almost unconscious, to a davit fast to the wreckage. The rope whirled around his neck but he paid no attention. He still clung to the davit. Then a breaker came and turned the deck over and he was not seen again. The total death list is twenty.

It is stated that the new owner of the Coburn property adjoining the city's public library building will erect a 35 apartment house, four stories in height, on the land in question. Plans have already been drawn and are being figured upon by Boston contractors. The building will be of brick with a pebbly stucco and plaster coating and will occupy the entire Merrimack street frontage of the Coburn lot. It is understood that the depth of the building will be about one-third of the distance back to Moody street. The lot contains 36 separate apartments fully equipped with modern conveniences. The cost of the new structure will be in the vicinity of $50,000.

Our building ordinances do not provide for the kind of structure called for in the plans, but it is presumed that the inspector of buildings will issue the permit providing that the walls are of the required thickness. Application for the permit to build, however, has not yet been made and the plans referred to are tentative, and were prepared by the Boston architect who planned the Keith theatre in Bridge street.
